

Campaign styles take shape

By HOWARD WALL

With the race for the presidency well underway, the campaign styles and personalities of the two candidates are emerging to be as sharply contrasting as their political philosophies.

One of the major factors behind the election of Gerald Ford to twelve terms as a United States Representative from Michigan was the image he projected as being a hard working Congressman. Ford is attempting to retain the role of a hard worker through acting very presidential and running on his administration's record. In speeches Ford compares the situation today to the situation when he entered office and he cites the actions of the Democratic Congress as being responsible for the present economic difficulties. In recent weeks Ford has remained at the White House, building up his presidential image while attacking Carter on emotional issues such as abortion and National Defense.

It appears that Jimmy Carter will retain his image of a strong willed rural farmer and center his campaign around the themes that won him the nomination. The campaign theme is revealed in his speeches as he attacks big wasteful government, deficit spending and calls for efficient government concerned about the needs of the people. Carter has separated himself from the liberal establishment which has previously controlled the Democratic party, a tactic which has won him the support of conservative Democrats and many independent voters.

In actual campaigning Gerald Ford usually speaks from prepared texts concerning various issues and his record as President. After three assassination attempts he is hesitant to mingle in large crowds of people. Carter in contrast often talks to audiences without prepared texts and themes of his campaign. Carter has been compared to John and Robert Kennedy as he often will loosen his tie, roll up his sleeves and plunge into a crowd.

The role of the Vice-Presidential candidates also seems to be emerging in the early days of the campaign. Republican nominee Robert Dole has constantly alleged Carter to be fuzzy on the issues and relates Carter to George McGovern and the "big spending Democratic Congress." Democratic nominee

Staff Covers Carter Visit

When press passes were issued for the Carter Campaign visit on Labor Day, Trevecca was there with four reporters. Jack Gregory, Andy Warren, Paul Cleckner, Tandy Vaughn were in the motorcade all day while Mrs. Carter went from one side of Nashville to the other.

After her arrival the local and national press were assembled at the airport Hilton for a press conference. She was asked a wide variety of questions from reporters. A INC reporter asked Mrs. Carter if she still planned to be active in the Mental Health area if she goes to Washington. She said, "I think it would be

Frosh Pick Leaders

The first full week of classes at Trevecca was highlighted by the Freshman election campaign which saw nineteen candidates vie for six offices.

On Friday evening when the ballots were tabulated, the following freshmen emerged victorious: Greg Page- President, Linda Brinkman-Vice President, Becky Rowan secretary, Jim Smith-Treasurer, and Honey Vee Chambers and Howard Wall, STUCO representatives.

The campaign actually began last weekend with petition signing but by midweek the campaign was in full swing. On Wednesday, posters went up and covered every available place on campus. Speeches were delivered during class chapel on Friday and they reflected the uniqueness and outstanding ability possessed by each candidate.

The freshmen have a busy year ahead and the responsibility is on the new officers to make the year successful.

Jordan: Rising star on hill

By KATHY WHITE

"I heard her on the radio," says a friend, "and thought it was God."

Since her election to Congress in 1972, Representative Barbara Jordan, Democrat of Texas, has indeed created quite a sensation on the national political scene. With "her razor-like mind and Jehovah-like delivery" she is a woman who, once encountered, is not easily forgotten.

The daughter of a Baptist minister, Representative Jordan is the first black woman ever elected to Congress from the South. She served six years in the Texas Senate before her election to the national office in '72, and during her ten years of public service she has consistently worked for her constituency. Recently, in an interview for U.S. News and World Report she said that she intends to concentrate her energies over the next few years on guaranteed employment for all who want to work, the extension of Social Security benefits to homemakers, and educational opportunities for all. She believes that busing by itself is not necessarily the answer to school problems, and that full racial equality in America will not be achieved in her lifetime. "But we must never stop trying," she insists. "We have come a long way, and we will go a lot further."

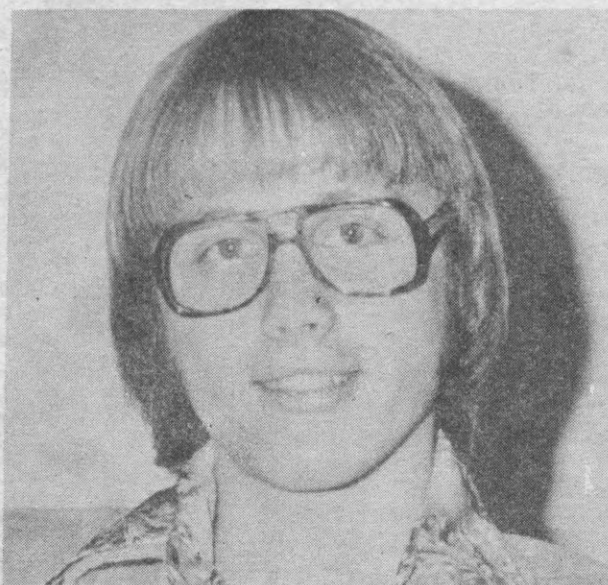

Ms. Jordan perhaps first came to the nation's attention in 1974, while serving as a member of the House Judiciary Committee. During the Committee's impeachment proceedings against former President Richard Nixon, she delivered one of the most memorable and thought-provoking speeches about the democratic system of government ever given. She said, "...My faith in the Constitution is whole, it is complete, it is total, and I am not going to sit here and be an idle spectator to the diminution, the subversion, the destruction of the Constitution..."

The framers confided in the Congress the power if need be to remove...a President swollen with power and grown tyrannical...

If the impeachment provision in the Constitution of the United States will not reach the offenses charged here, then perhaps the eighteenth-century Constitution should be abandoned to a twentieth-century paper shredder." It is that oratorical ability, coupled with her intelligence and her determination to serve, that has made Barbara Jordan a respected name on Capitol Hill. At age 39, she has been mentioned for nomination for President, and at the 1976 Democratic National Convention, received several votes for the Vice-Presidential position alongside Jimmy Carter, the convention's nominee for the presidency.

"But we must never stop trying." These are the words that signify the spirit of Barbara Jordan. As a leader on the political scene it is that determination and that drive that make Barbara Jordan the rising star on Capitol Hill.

Communicator's Corner

ASB Communicator: Chuck Green

Que Pasa! No...I don't think so...not this year. But I will have a regular feature in each issue of the paper where I hope to be able to do my job and communicate. There are just an awful lot of things we need to talk about this year and I hope we can get around to them soon. But right now we need to get the year off to a good start and talk about something that is very important to every member of the TNC community—the Community Council and its guidelines for the coming year. For the benefit of you newcomers - and to refresh the memories of you old-timers—the CLC is an organization composed of the ASB Council, five club presidents, and three faculty and administrative representatives. Its purpose is to formulate the guidelines by which our community members are expected to live this year. Now the first thing we have to remember is that our school is an organization of the Church of the Nazarene. Everything we do—even the CLC guidelines - must be compatible with the church and its manual. That is the umbrella under which we must operate.

Platform Comparisons

Democrats and GOP Chart Opposing Views

By CHUCK GREEN

Although precious little has been said about "the issues" thus far in this election year—the contest instead seems to be over which candidate is the most loving, truthful, and trustworthy—once the president is inaugurated on January 20, his attitudes and opinions on the economy, labor, the Krelins, etc. are more likely to have an effect on our lives than his abilities to love and be honest. One of the best clues we have as to the philosophies and programs of Gerry Ford and Jimmy Carter is to read their respective party platforms. Although the platforms rarely receive much attention after the conventions, they are, as Harry Truman once said, "a contract with the people." George Wallace and Gene McCarthy not withstanding, the platforms show us that there is a "dime's worth of difference" between the Republicans and Democrats. The following are excerpts from the respective platforms as they deal with the real issues of this election.

THE ECONOMY

Republicans: An end to deficit spending is seen as essential to permanently eradicate both inflation and unemployment. Republicans are historically reticent to employ government interference in the free market system and this year is no exception—they are against wage/price controls, support the autonomy of the Federal Reserve System, and oppose the Humphrey-Hawkins bill (which would force the federal government to employ persons who had difficulty finding jobs in the private sector in order to lower the unemployment rate to 3% in four years).

Democrats: Lowering the unemployment rate is the prime motive of the Democratic party's economic plank. Therefore, they endorse (in effect) the Humphrey-Hawkins bill. They support wage/price controls as a legitimate means of ensuring price stability and advocate making the Federal Reserve a "full partner in national economic decisions."

DEFENSE

Republicans: They call for "a period of sustained growth in our defense effort" and favor construction of the B-1 bomber.

Democrats: Urge cutting the defense budget by $5 billion to $7 billion. They would delay making a decision on the B-1 until February, 1977.

TAXES

Republicans: "The best tax reform is tax reduction." They also promise tax incentives to business and investors to ensure "job-producing expansion of our economy."

Democrats: They promise a "complete overhaul" of our tax system, including eliminating "unjustified" tax shelters in such areas as oil, gas, farming, and real estate. They also want insurance that high-income Americans will pay their fair share of tax dollars.

SCHOOL BUSING

Republicans: The GOP opposes forced busing for the purpose of achieving racial balance. They favor a constitutional amendment that would forbid such action.

Democrats: "Mandatory transportation of students beyond their neighborhoods for the purpose of desegregation remains a judicial tool of the last resort."

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

Republicans: "In pursuing detente, we must not grant unilateral favors with only the hope" of future reward. They favor continued troop presence in Europe and South Korea and U.S. rights over the Panama Canal.

Democrats: They urge a continuation of detente with the U.S.S.R., through "business-like negotiations about specific issues and not through bad bargains." They favor troop withdrawal from Korea, the "normalization of diplomatic relations with the People's Republic of China, and a new Panama Canal Treaty with "wide hemispheric support"

GUN CONTROL

Republicans: They oppose federal registration of firearms.

Democrats: They advocate laws to control the manufacture and distribution of hand guns.

ABORTION

Republicans: Support the efforts of "those who seek enactment of a constitutional amendment" to prohibit abortion.

Democrats: Oppose a constitutional amendment to ban abortion.

HEY BUDDY, WHO ARE YOU VOTING FOR?

Secondly, Trevecca may at times have been set aside for their presentation. Thursday, September 23, will be devoted to explaining the guidelines. Friday, September 24, will be a time when, in smaller groups, students will have an opportunity to interact with the CLC members on the guidelines. Jeff Klepfer, ASB president and chairperson of CLC hopes that under this arrangement, we can all "work together toward a better understanding of the meaning of Christian Community." Things aren't perfect. I know that as well as anyone—but in CLC we have a tool we can use to help us live together for the present and work to make things better for the future.

Interview: Gregory Points Out Goals

ASB Communicator: Chuck Green
Interview with Jack Gregory

Our Trev-echoes editor for this school year is Mr. Jack Gregory, of Gallatin, Tennessee. Because Jack is relatively new to Trevecca, an interview was arranged with this reporter so that the TNC community might get to know him better.

Q: Jack, could you tell us something about your personal interests?

A: Well, I have always been very active in politics. I consider myself to be a member of the progressive wing of the Democratic Party. I have also been involved with the American Civil Liberties Union and the American s for Democratic Action. I hope after graduation to be involved in the political arena - working in government, teaching political science, or perhaps in constitutional law.

Q: I know that you've attended several universities since you left the Navy. What brought you to TNC?

A: That's a difficult question to answer. I think the smallness of the school was a factor...I think Trevecca just had something I wanted that I couldn't find other places.

Q: Now that you've been here a while, do you have any goals for Trevecca?

A: Well, I'm very interested in Trevecca. I guess I'm a true patriot wherever I am. I think I would like to see an academic revival on campus. People need to be more aware of the "outside world." They need to know what other people are thinking.

Members of the '76-77 TREV-ECHOES Editorial Staff

Campaigns

Q: What goals do you have for the paper this year?

A: My first goal is to make the Trev-echoes competitive with the best of college newspapers. I think TNC has been too content with the mediocrity on campus. I think we could have the best in many areas. Of course, the first purpose of a newspaper is to print the news, and news is news both on and off campus, although student-related news takes precedence in a college paper. As I mentioned earlier, I think new points of view need to be brought to campus, and Trev-echoes is an excellent means of doing that.

Q: What about specifics? Sports for example?

A: I think the sports people have been shafted. I definitely think that our sports coverage needs to be broadened. After all, most of TNC's publicity and recognition comes from our athletic department. I would also hope to be able to publish more literature-poetry prose, etc.- by both the students and faculty.

Q: Is there anything else you would like to say while you have the chance?

A: Yes....First of all, I would like to thank the Administration for its cooperation. I've never seen a school where the Administration is as open and willing to work with students as it is here. After all, I'm only the editor-they are the publishers..Also, I would like to invite more people to get involved with the newspaper. It's the students' paper and we would like to have a balanced staff in terms of perspective-I hope this year we break a cracker in two trying to be fair.

'Fritz' Mondale has attacked Ford on economic policy and has reminded voters of the Watergate era in making reference to the failures of the "Nixon-Ford administration."

The candidates wives also have very distinct campaigning styles. Betty Ford is very outspoken and is considered to be an effective campaigner. Many observers fill she is a better speaker than her husband as she tends to entertain audiences. Roselyn Carter on the other hand is very dignified but outgoing. She has a charming personality and is most effective talking to small groups.

It is certain that the styles and personalities of the candidates will affect the outcome of the election, however, not until November second will the full impact be fully realized.

Klepfer: Great

Most of the talk last spring concerning student political life was that of our present student body president, Jeff Klepfer. How would he size-up compared to past Presidents we have had here at Trevecca?

I am the first to admit that our past presidents were good Presidents and did institute major changes that were long overdue and were made because of very forceful leadership. They have led the school through controversy successfully, and they should be given appropriate laurels for their efforts.

I also think that Jeff Klepfer will give that same kind of leadership in the coming year. In his campaign speech this past spring Mr. Klepfer stated that this year will be a time of stability rather than change, and indeed it will, with possible exceptions.

There is a factor I think that we should consider when comparing past presidents. It is the fact that each of the councils has its own unique style.

Though Mr. Klepfer is low-key in his profile, I think he will make a very dynamic president and one who will exert leadership in all areas of his job.

I think it will be an exciting year.

Busing: A Chronic Problem

By PATTI CHAMBERS

It's clear in Boston in 1976 that the era in which race was thought of as a Southern dilemma is long dead and gone. The issues are American, not Southern. Schools in the most defiantly resistant Black Belt counties in Mississippi and Alabama have desegregated, while Boston is in turmoil. Times of defeated ideals make people especially sensitive to hypocrisy, and the symbolism in Boston's present resistance has not escaped many observers.

This is the second year and the second phase of court-ordered desegregation in Boston. Phase I, in the fall of 1974, touched off demonstrations, boycotts and bloodshed. With the exception of South Boston High School which remains in turmoil most of the city's 162 schools have relatively quieted down.

The legal technology for enforcing desegregation has expanded into a formidable machine: city, state and metropolitan police, units of the National Guard, federal marshals, the F.B.I., officials from the Justice Department. They have all entered into play at one time or another. A relative quiet reigns now, but a lot of people are still very scared.

The problems started when U.S. District Court Judge Arthur Garrity issued a very complicated desegregation plan. Besides busing, it involves new districts, a large city-wide magnet district with special programs to draw students from the neighborhoods voluntarily, and a complex series of advisory councils to monitor the whole operation. The judge is making an unprecedented effort to link desegregation with improvements in education. Apart from student assignments, the most visible effect of the Judge's planning is the presence in the system's 162 schools of more Black and Spanish speaking teachers. Boston's students are 52% white, 36% black, and 12% other minorities.

Judge Garrity has in many respects taken temporary possession of the school system. It results from the fact that for many years both the school administration and the school committee have deliberately segregated black school children, maintaining what is in many respects a dual school system. The desegregation issue has become badly tangled. The attack on the legally mandated Jim Crow dual systems of the South is now almost completed. Southern desegregation has worked well in some places, and badly in others. Some systems in the South are turning into models of race relations that pose a shameful contrast to a good deal of what is happening in the North. Extending the law to the North proved to be difficult.

Old fashioned Southern segregation was a matter of law and official policy, whereas Northern-style segregation was the product of extra-legal forces, and therefore beyond legal remedies involving the schools. By 1970, however, civil rights lawyers began persuading the lower federal courts to give much more detailed scrutiny to the facts of urban segregation outside the South. Lawyers representing black plaintiffs in many cities outside the South have been able to show that a good deal of segregation is the result of action taken by school boards and school officials.

It is this sort of evidence of official action, and not a hunger for radical social change, that compels sober and generally conservative federal judges to conclude that a good deal of Northern-style segregation throughout the country is a violation of black school children's "Constitutional Rights."

Busing has caused a lot of problems in the past two years in Boston. They have lost 35% of the white children from the schools. The children have either transferred to private schools, moved, or they are being tutored in their homes. Social forces outside the schools, years of conflicting demands for compensatory education and desegregation, the fears of the whites, the bitterness and frustrations of the blacks, have all gone into creating a war no one can win.

The Bicentennial is on a lot of people's minds. The contrast between its ideals and frightening actualities of the present, and between memories of turmoil, all feed a sense of loss. There is something elegiac in the air, as when Judge Garrity writes in the past tense, "Boston became the bridge not only to liberty but to the ideal of universal and inclusive public schooling. The only question remaining to ask becomes what remedies the courts can offer; for 'rights without

Can GOP Survive

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON—It is 70 days and several million words until Nov. 2 when the hopes and fears of the nation will turn on an election as important as any in our history. Above all, the future of the Republican Party and the workability of the two-party system are at stake.

The charade of harmony at Kansas City after the nomination of President Ford concealed a deep fissure in the ranks of the party, signified by those signs "Reagan Can Win" bobbing up throughout the Kemper Arena.

Reagan delegates leaving for home nursed the private conviction that the "liberal" wing of the party had triumphed by one means or another and this meant defeat.

Convinced that the Ford-Dole ticket will go down, they will wait for Nov. 3 to say, "I told you so." After all, a switch of only 59 votes would have given the nomination to their hero. And the polls, showing that Reagan would be more badly defeated by Jimmy Carter than would Gerald Ford, are for these zealots, irrelevant.

The extremist fringe—their frankest exponent is Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina—will move in to take over the remnants of the party. A fringe to be sure, it is a fanatical fringe offering the pat—and wholly unreal—answers to the deep-seated troubles that beset us at home and abroad.

In frustration and bafflement Americans might be tempted to follow these Pied Pipers down a road that would, in that overworked expression, be truly un-American. It would mean resorting to force, everywhere.

If this sounds alarmist, it is only necessary to recall the Reagan pledges of intervention in Panama to insure that there is no change in the status of extra-territoriality for the United States.

Moderation of a Reagan or a Helms—after all, he was put in nomination for the vice presidency—once in office is a consoling thought. But given public opinion aroused by constant appeals to passion and force, that could not be counted on.

All this puts a particular and a pressing challenge up to President Ford. His acceptance speech showed him at the most stirring and dramatic moment of his life and in delivery he lived up to it. Forceful, impassioned he held a convention that emotionally had been Reagan's from the start.

And while Reaganites could not fault his conservatism, he did put in a paragraph or two praising the "forward looking" policies of his administration with Eastern Europe, the Soviet Union, Mainland China.

This was a sop to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger who sat in the VIP gallery looking glum, having heard his policies denounced by Helms and others as immoral and dangerously expedient.

The future role of Ronald Reagan is clearly defined. Now in his 65th year, he will be too old to run for the presidency in 1980. But he has a large and devoted following and a mass outlet in his newspaper column and in radio and television spots prepared and delivered weekly. In addition, he will be speaking around the country at $4,000 or $5,000 a shot.

This gives him a convenient income base which will be hardly less than a half million a year and probably much more. Far more important, since—as his revelation of net worth showed—he has a sizable amount in capital and land, is the influence he can exert.

He may be speaking only to the faithful, to the hard-line converts, but this could change radically should Ford go down.

Then he will emerge as the prophet who could have carried the banner of conservatism to triumph had it not been for that misbegotten squeaker in Kansas City. And this is precisely what the faithful will be only too happy to believe.

The Reagan position has rested, or so it seems to me, on a myth.

The heart of the myth is that out there in the country, ignored by the traditional candidates, are millions of Americans only awaiting to vote for the conservative or ultraconservative position. They yearn for the sureties of the past as promised by the Reagans and the Helmses.

This was the essence of Barry Goldwater's campaign in 1964—a choice not an echo.

Goldwater carried four states of the Deep South and his native Arizona. It can be argued that times have changed and a conservative trend has set in in the country so that a choice, not an echo, in 1976—or 1980—would have a far greater appeal.

But has it changed enough to give a Goldwater-type candidate substantially more than that meager residue? I, for one, seriously doubt it.

TNC Promotes Equal Rights

TREVECCA OBSERVES NON-DISCRIMINATORY POLICY

The United States Congress passed legislation in 1972 requiring all educational institutions receiving federal funds to not discriminate in admissions and employment on the basis of race, color, and national origin.

The United States Congress passed legislation in 1972 requiring all educational institutions receiving Federal funds to not discriminate in admissions and employment on the basis of sex. Prior legislation prohibits discrimination on the basis of race, color, and national origin.

President Mark R. Moore has appointed the following Committee to see that Trevecca Nazarene College is in full compliance with Title IX of the Education Amendments

Act of 1972

Harper L. Cole, chairman (coordinator)
Ann Fuqua, Arthur Williams (faculty)
Elmore Vail, Deborah Lore (athletics)
Marion MacKay, Phillip Storey (housing)
Wayne Gallup, Joan Gibbs (employment)
Grace Walker, Bruce Oldham (students)
Bob Brower, Geraldine Teter (admissions)

Anyone who is aware of any instance of discrimination on the Trevecca Nazarene College campus should call it to the attention of the Title IX Coordinator. The grievance should be submitted in writing. If those presenting the grievance feel that the problem is not solved by the Coordinator they may appeal the case according to the following order

Title IX Committee
The Administrative Council
The College President
The Board of Trustees
The Director of the Office of Civil Rights

(Exhaustion of these procedures is not prerequisite for the filing of complaints with the Office of Civil Rights.)

The official position of TNC is as follows:

NOTICE OF NON-DISCRIMINATORY POLICY

Trevecca Nazarene College does not discriminate on the basis of sex, race, color national and ethnic origin in administration of its educational policies, admission policies, employment, scholarship and loan programs, and athletic and other college administered programs.

Inquiries regarding compliance with either Title VI or Title IX may be directed to Harper Cole, Executive Vice President, Trevecca Nazarene College, 333 Murfreesboro Road, Nashville, Tennessee, 37210, Area Code (615) 254-9806, or to the Director of the Office of Civil Rights, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Washington, D.C.

Frosh arrive at TNC

Incoming Freshman were officially welcomed to Trevecca by the rest of the student body at the Freshman mixer sponsored by the student council and held in the Gym on September 7.

The large group of freshman congregated in the athletic center after a busy day of registration and were greeted by members of the student council. The freshman were then dismissed into four groups to participate in "fun and games."

The four teams competed in a number of unusual competitions for which they were awarded points. The big light of the competition was mock political campaign which put the candidates Terri Cloth, Harvey Glick, Connie Crook, and Bernie Schwartz in a frantic drive for office of Freshman class president, each group composed and presented a campaign song, created a poster, originated a slogan, and drafted and delivered a speech. The responsible group of electors namely the student council spent agonizing moments of painstaking consideration as they graded the efforts of each group.

The Freshman were entertained by as group, Trinity, formed around former members of the group Truth. The group presented a number of contemporary gospel members including a melody of songs by Andre Grouch.

The evening was concluded by a relevant devotion lead by Mark Morsch which challenged the freshman to be themselves

WEEKLY SPECIAL

Kissinger Urges Independence For Southwest Africa

by Jack Anderson
with Joe Spear

WASHINGTON -- Secretary of State Henry Kissinger recently returned from Zurich where he met with South Africa's Prime Minister John Vorster. The two men negotiated in the strictest secrecy. Not since the Vietnam War has Kissinger been so secretive about his purposes.

However, inside sources told us that Kissinger urged Vorster to make some major concessions to the blacks. Kissinger asked him to grant independence to Southwest Africa. The new nation, of course, would be governed by its black majority. Kissinger also asked Vorster to use his influence with the white rulers of Rhodesia to submit to black majority rule.

But at the same time, Kissinger is under great pressure to help South Africa preserve its own white regime. The pressure comes from some of the nation's most powerful corporations, which have strong ties to the White House.

American industry has a $2 billion stake in South Africa. Over 300 large corporations have offices there. Another six thousand sell their products in South Africa. American banks have loaned hundreds of millions of dollars to South Africa. And trade between the United States and South Africa is steadily increasing.

This troubles Iowa's Senator Dick Clark. He is afraid Kissinger might wind up as the diplomatic champion of South Africa. Therefore, South Africa might become another Vietnam, with the United States supporting the unpopular side against the rest of the world.

So the senator has begun an examination of U.S. policy towards South Africa. He is chairman of the Senate subcommittee on Africa, and will hold eight hearings this month.

ROSELLI REPORT : We first broke the story that mobster John Roselli was missing. We reported that the only clue his abductors left was a smudge spot on the window of his car.

Roselli's body was found later stuffed in an oil drum in Florida's Biscayne Bay. The FBI has joined the Miami police in the search for his killers. We can report, however, that the smudge spot is still the only clue. The investigators have been unable to trace the oil drum or the heavy chain that was wrapped around it.

But the signs indicate that Roselli was the victim of a mob execution. The murder of Roselli, a witness before the Senate Intelligence Committee, was likely to bring the federal government into the case. The police believe, therefore, the killing had to have the approval of Florida's Mafia overlord, Santos Trafficante. Both federal and Florida lawmen, therefore, are investigating Trafficante.

The flamboyant Roselli was more than just another hoodlum. He masterminded the attempt to assassinate Cuban Premier Fidel Castro for the Central Intelligence Agency. He used elements from the Havana underworld in the plot. They were Cubans who had been left behind after Castro closed down the Mafia's gambling casinos in Havana.

It took a high Mafia leader to make the arrangements with the Havana underworld. Roselli brought in the Chicago Godfather, Sam Giancana, to set up the assassination attempts.

The whole scheme was almost exposed over Giancana's love for a woman. Giancana was in Florida helping to plan the Castro killing when he learned that his girl friend had struck up a romance with a Las Vegas comedian.

The enraged Giancana wanted to fly straight to Las Vegas and take care of the comedian. The CIA talked him out of it by promising to bug the lovers' room and give a full report to Giancana. A private eye was hired to plant the bug. But unhappily, he was caught.

This resulted in an investigation that might have exposed Giancana, Roselli and the Castro assassination scheme. We have learned that the CIA quietly intervened with the Justice Department to block the investigation. The bizarre episode has been hushed up all these years.

SHIP SHORTAGE : During the recent Korean crisis, the Navy moved the aircraft carrier Midway into Korean waters. The move was intended as a warning to the North Koreans not to violate the 23-year armistice.

But classified documents cautioned that the Navy was short of ships in the Far East to back up a military play. Many of the ships are also run down. They are manned, in some cases, by incompetent crews.

With the close of the Vietnam War, the Navy's combat crews have had no one to combat. They are at loose ends, whiling away their time. Living conditions aboard ship have deteriorated. Therefore, morale is low, discipline lax and efficiency poor.

The classified documents show that the fleet has been neglected, with infrequent practice runs and inadequate equipment. Routine refueling operations at sea, for example, have resulted in half-a-dozen collisions since the Vietnam War. At best, the fleet is only in fair fighting condition.

Yet the admirals always manage to squeeze enough money out of the budget for their own comforts. No less than President Ford has complained, according to confidential White House minutes, that the military brass deliberately cuts muscle instead of fat when he orders a budget reduction.

New Format For Encounters

There have been of course, changes made in recent months in the administrative organization of the "Encounters," a musical ensemble that for several years has traveled in a public relations role for TNC. The group is now a full time operation and fewer than half its personnel are TNC students or alumni. Here on campus, a goodly number of our Trevecca community have expressed dissatisfaction with at least part of the changes made. In response to the many questions asked, Chuck Green, the ASB communicator, conducted two separate interviews with Mr. Franklin Cook and Mr. Jim Van Hook, co-directors of the new Encounters. The following paragraphs are a summary of his findings. For more detailed information, complete copies of his reports to the Student Council can be obtained in the Student Council office.

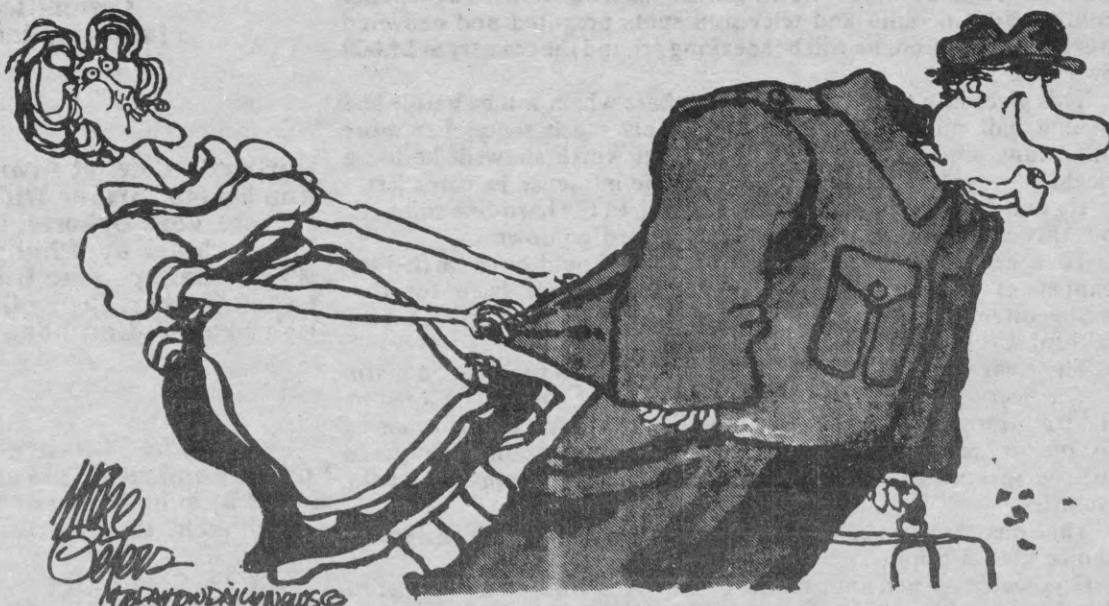

I. Finances: The financial contribution of the college to the Encounters is rent-free use of the school bus "The First Lady." The school is also making a cash contribution of no more than $12,000 (the amount spent by the college on the Encounters in '75-'76). It is hoped and expected that after this school year the cash contribution will be unnecessary.

II. Personnel: Auditions for the Encounters were open to all comers in order to obtain the best possible personnel. Aside from a small weekly allowance, Encounters members will receive their financial remuneration in the form of a scholarship fund set to help pay their tuition expenses at TNC should they decide to attend in 1977-'78.

III. Scheduling: Although the Encounters will be traveling from coast to coast for four months (January-April), they will be traveling on the Southeast Educational Zone for the express purpose of recruiting students.

IV. The role of James Van Hook: Mr. Van Hook is acting as the musical director of the Encounters. His publishing company, Sacred Manuscripts, has been involved in publishing records and tapes of the group, the profit of which is going into paying travel expenses. Mr. Van Hook's financial interest in the printed material of the Encounters' songs and arrangements. The travels of the group are enabling Van Hook to find many open doors across the country where he can sell this material.

Under this arrangement, the school may be able to benefit in the form of new students and contributions. Mr. Van Hook as well does not stand to suffer greatly-although his financial gain will not be at TNC expense. If the coordinators of the Encounters can learn to trust the other members of the TNC community and not fear the results of open decisions, we all may be able to gain.

"DID YOU HEAR THAT, PAT?... CHINA, A FIFTH OF THE WORLD, IS LEADERLESS,..... A FIFTH OF THE WORLD, PAT,..."

After Mao

What Happens to China ?

The death of Chairman Mao Tse-tung in the past few days has the world looking on in anticipation of who will take over the leadership of China and her 800 million people.

Second in line in the Chinese power structure has been Hua Keno-ferg 57, a compromise between the quarreling radicals led by Mao's widow, Ching Ching, and the moderates led by ex-Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping. Mao's widow has support in the military and power in the radicals left, but do not count Hsiao-ping out. The first sign of who's in control may be determined by who arranges the funeral.

There have been recent reports of disorder in China between the radical left and moderate Mao's death may cause an all out revolt between these two factions.

Mao who has led the Communist party in China since 1935, and has been Chairman since China's declaration of October 1, 1949, which created the Peoples Republic of China, now has left this massive nation in a state of turmoil, and it will be a while before word comes out as to who is on top of the Chinese power structure.

Carter Campaign in Spirit of FDR

By ERNEST CUNEO

WASHINGTON (N.A.N.A.) — Wisely enough, Jimmy Carter started his campaign at Warm Springs, Ga. Warm Springs is where F.D.R. waged his heroic battle against paralysis, it was so close to his heart that F.D.R. called Georgia his second home state.

More and more, as the decades roll by, Democratic candidates invoke the gigantic figure of F.D.R., architect of the Democratic Party of the 20th century as Jefferson was of the 19th.

Right now, however, much more than Jimmy needs a great architect like F.D.R., he needs a great master mason like the late James A. Farley who laid the foundations and indeed erected the political structure without which the New Deal edifice would not have reached towering political status.

More particularly, James A. Farley, by tireless effort, built a Democratic Party that amounted to Farley's personal political army of dedicated Democratic workers extended into every country in the Union and reaching down to the crossroad hamlets and farms.

Farley, by training both a bookkeeper and salesman, pushed both professions to zeniths never reached before nor since in American politics. Farley kept track of his friends — all of his friends — as the Hapsburgs kept track of their crown jewels.

Farley had 150,000 personal friends, Democrats, who would get up and sell the Democratic Party at his request, and then get their reward — converts to the voting places on Election Day.

Each of them got at least two personal letters signed in his framed green ink during the campaign of two months. Farley could sign about two thousand letters an hour, mostly signed "Jim."

His vast personal following he masterfully organized into a chain of command. Actually and uniquely, though he never thought of his method in those terms, James A. Farley combined the best features of ancient feudalism with 20th century democracy.

To a degree, the Farley method resembles the Theatre Command System of the United States Army. Farley treated each state as if it were governed by a select board consisting of the state chairman, the Democratic National Committee's committeeman and its senators and congressmen in Washington.

To these leaders, he would refer all matters of patronage; in return they were expected to deliver their votes in the Congress in support of the President. They also were expected to deliver the Democratic voters to the polls.

However, in his vital area, Farley asserted concurrent jurisdiction. That is, as Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, he called upon his own 150,000 workers in the Democratic party, under about 2,000 especially selected men and women throughout the Union, to make a concurrent drive with the state organizations. The state and big city machines, working with Jim Farley's national organization, turned in the most spectacular election victories in American history.

Of course, Jimmy Carter has nothing to compare with the Farley Organization. As a matter of historical fact, neither did F.D.R. Farley was much more powerful within the Democratic Party than F.D.R.

Jimmy Carter, like F.D.R., has made a so-far successful appeal to the man-in-the-street. But it is another matter to energize the man-in-the-street to bring in the voter-in-the booth on Election Day, and nobody could get out the vote like James A. Farley.

Much more importantly, nobody but nobody could get intrastate quarrels and splits straightened out like National Chairman Farley. If Jimmy Carter is defeated, it will be by the feuds and quarrels within the Democratic Party.

Thus, nominal Democrat Bella Abzug declared she would not support Democrat Pat Moynihan if he won the Democratic primary. In close elections, this type of local war has brought down the national ticket in dozens of instances.

James A. Farley prevented these. Genial Jim would become stern General Farley when local Democratic wars threatened the national Democratic ticket. Farley's orders then were crisp and to the point: "Settle it among yourselves, or I'll settle it for you." And he did.

Farley, unconsciously, was a follower of Plato. He believed that nine cases out of 10 could be solved by reasonableness and persuasion. But in one out of 10 cases, Farley was a decisive Alexander the Great, cutting the Gordian Knot, ordering, "Growl you may, but go you must."

With no comparable national organization and with the Democratic Party polarized, clearly enough, far more than he needs the spirit of F.D.R., Jimmy Carter needs a master politician like Farley to do Farley's job.

That, however, is the trouble with the whole Democratic Party. There was only one Jim Farley — and Jim Farley took his job with him when he left.

D.C. STANDS FOR DOCTOR... DOCTOR WASHINGTON WAS AN OPHTHALMOLOGIST... HIS BEST FRIEND WAS NAMED BUNKER HILL

ONE DAY ON THE BATTLEFIELD, DOCTOR WASHINGTON LOOKED AT BUNKER HILL, AND SAID, "THERE'S SOMETHING WRONG WITH THE WHITES OF YOUR EYES!"

AS A REWARD FOR SAVING HIS FRIEND'S VISION, THE PEOPLE VOTED TO MAKE DOCTOR WASHINGTON THEIR COACH!

Farris Named Outstanding Young Woman

During the summer, Donna Farris, circulation and reference librarian at Trevecca Nazarene College, was notified by the chairman of Fuller and Dees that she is being considered for the award as outstanding young woman of the state. She has previously been named as one of the outstanding young women of America.

Ten of these young women from the state finalists will later be selected as outstanding in the nation.

Ms. Farris holds the BS degree in elementary education and the MLS degree from Indiana University in Bloomington Indiana.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Wesley of Columbus, Indiana. She and her husband, Mark, make their home in Nashville.

Hull Welcomes Students

By JERRY HULL

WELCOME and other trite greetings are hereby IMPERSONALLY extended.

However, before the year is over we of the Student Services Office will have a PERSONAL encounter with you. We're looking forward to sharing with you.

All Trevecca students—sooner or later—will be by to see us to request chapel cuts, obtain emergency loans, complain about room, seek meal exemptions, just talk, read available magazines, criticize your roommate, have your "hands spanked." say "Thank you," acknowledge that TNC has warts and other weaknesses, and 1001 other reasons.

TO PERSONALLY know you will be about the best thing to happen this year. Drop by—we'll be waiting for you.

exciting to work with mental health on a national level."

From the airport Hilton the motorcade went to Opryland where, after a walking tour, Mrs. Carter addressed a rally at the Showboat stadium. After a rousing reception at Opryland where she attracted many spectators, the group was off to the Governor's mansion. After brief remarks and handshakes she departed for her next campaign stop in Indiana.

Arms Sales: Can US Continue Policy?

In hopes of making our influence in the Middle-East paramount to that of Russia, through the sales of arms, we have drawn ourselves into an ever explosive Mideast.

Our leaders in Washington fear that the sales of this country's most sophisticated nonnuclear weapons would enable us to bring pressure to bear for a Arab-Israeli agreement and also help balance U.S. trade.

But the sale of these sophisticated weapons to nonindustrial states involves a military commitment to the se countries on the part of the U.S.; this was renounced to the American people by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee report on the arms sales to the Middle-East.

Because of our 10.4 billion dollars worth of arms sells to Iran, they will need by 1980 at least 50 to 60,000 American military and civilian technicians to operate these sophisticated weapons.

Jordan has purchased a 540 million dollar American air defense system. A system so sophisticated the U.S. Navy has had trouble operating. On top of this we have sold six billion dollars of weapons to Saudi-Arab and have over gone as far as selling to Egypt, Israel's biggest ever, six C-130 Hercules transport aircraft.

And in the meantime, the U.S. is remaining as Israel's main supplier of weapons proudly one billion dollars worth of arms annually.

Obviously a war anywhere in the Mideast reates the dilemma of permitting American technicians to remain and take part in the hostilities or to withdraw then, breaking the commitment made with initial sales.

Although the sale of arms in the Middle-East has made American influence paramount it may cost more than this country is able to pay.

Library Makes Changes

By PATTI CHAMBERS

If you are planning on going into the library anytime soon, be prepared to run into a few busy librarians and confused students.

The resources center is in the process of going on a library network and changing from Dewey Decimal Classification System to the Library of Congress Classification System. Therefore, it might be a little hard to find any books at first.

There are several reasons why they are doing this. One of the main reasons is that in these modern times it is the trend in Library technology to be on the Library of Congress system. Most of the graduate libraries are using the L.C. system for their classification of books. Therefore, it will help our students if they are familiar with this system, because they will experience less difficulty while doing further study in other libraries.

Also, this system will make things a lot easier for the library because it gives a broader base for classification. It also gives access to wider range service possibilities.

The use of a network and the L.C. system makes our library very compatible with a large library data base and related computer programs.

Most of the other Nazarene Colleges have, or will, be starting the Library of Congress system and network in their libraries.

Don't get frustrated if you don't find a book. After everyone learns how to use the L.C. system it will enable the Library to give its users much faster access to materials.

"How do you keep busy the other six days?"

Student Expresses God's Helpfulness With Problems

By FONDA FERGUSON

The most meaningful times I remember during college were those when I went to the Lord in private...

So many responsibilities, activities, and attitudes would build up until I could no longer keep my mind clear.

Worries and doubts would keep me from being myself.

Just seeming to be falling apart, I would run in desperation to the dorm chapel or to the little prayer chapel on campus.

Sometimes I would stay only a few minutes; sometimes I would have to cry endlessly and lay all of my anxieties out in front of the Lord.

No matter how long my encounter took, I was always reassured by Him that He loved me more than I could ever think.

God didn't melt the problems away that I told Him about; He gave me strength to handle them...

He didn't change the person I was having a bad attitude toward; He gave me an open mind to understand them...

God didn't stop all the school activities from happening; He straightened out my priorities so I knew my limits.

I can always be sure that the prayer chapels will be near me, for I've found them to be in my own heart whenever I call on the Lord.

Spiritual Opportunities at TNC

By DANNY HUMBLE
RELIGION EDITOR

As Religion Editor it is my privilege to share with you all spiritual happenings as well as possible. I am looking for a great spiritual year together on our Campus. It is exciting to realize that during this school year, many students have come to Trevecca to find something more than an education. It is my prayer that perhaps through this newspaper many will be encouraged and strengthened through some type of poem, sermon, or just a great testimony of some believer. While being here personally I have become stronger and better anchored through the daily living with other born again believers. I have been encouraged continually while watching and listening to great spiritual leaders such as we have here on our Administration and faculty board. I have felt they are eager to not only teach us academically but to share and teach us spiritually as well, and to share their own personal lives with us.

During our Opening Convocation we have heard some of the best gospel music around. Sharing with us was "Direction", a newly formed trio group whose warm spirit touched everyone's heart. Speaking at opening night was our Student Body President Jeff Klepfer, who spoke to us about following Christ and not worrying about others and just keeping our eyes on Jesus. Or things unto God. Our chapel Sept. 9th we were inspired again can be a great time of spiritual as Dr. Moore, our own renewal or it could be a common President, spoke in the early 3 day ritual or procedure in morning chapel service, which we go through the ministry through there music. followed by Chuck Green motions.

On Sept. 10, Bill Fisher our Vice-President of Religious Life Committee spoke to us after the exciting sounds of the country. Can we dare say, what Trevedores bringing forth their an I do for Trevecca and what ministry through there music. can I do for God while I am here

That following evening we heard also from what I felt is one of the best singing groups going. That is none other than our own "Encounters" whom will be traveling for Trevecca for a fully year, touring the United States and also overseas to spread the great news about Jesus Christ through their music. Before the Encounters sang, we heard a challenging, inspiring message from Dr. Toby Williams which challenged us to be something other than a mirage in life. He used our school motto "to be rather to seen." I am sure all of us want to be just that. If opening chapel services have started with such inspiring speakers and singers like these, I am excited about going to more and more of our chapel services which give us the opportunity during the day to take the time between classes, get together in Prayer and Praise together and worship our Lord. We are the body of Trevecca as well as the body of Christ. Our chapel services will depend solely on our own attitude toward them. In Ephesian 5:20 Christ tells us to give thanks always for ALL

Kennedy said: "Ask not what your country can do for you. Ask what you can do for your country."

Can we dare say, what can I do for Trevecca and what can I do for God while I am here

We must work together as one boyd, like brothers and sisters in Christ. I Corinthians 3:9 "for we are the laborers together with God, ye are Gods cultivated field, year are God's Building."

What a challenge is in store for us this year of 1976-1977. Through prayer and faith and working together the fire will surely fall on the Campus of Trevecca Nazarene Colleges.

Try God's Direction

Religion Editor: Danny Humble

"Thine ears shall hear a word behind thee, saying, This is the way, walk ye in it, when ye turn to the right hand, and when ye turn to the left." (Isa. 30:21)

When we are in doubt or difficulty, when many voices urge this course or the other, when prudence utters one advice and faith another, then let us be still, hushing each intruder, calming ourselves in the sacred hush of God's presence; let us study his word in the attitude of devout attention; let us lift up our nature into the pure light of his face, eager only to know what God the Lord shall determine - and ere long a very distinct impression will be made, the unmistakable forthtelling of his secret counsel.

It is not wise in the early stages of Christian life to depend on this alone, but to wait for the corroboration of circumstances. But those who have had many dealings with God know well the value of a secret fellowship with him, to ascertain His will.

Are you in difficulty about your way? Go to God with your question get direction from the light of his smile or the cloud of his refusal. If you only get alone, where the lights and shadows of earth cannot interfere, where human opinions fail to reach and if you will dare to wait there silent and expectant, though all around you insist on immediate decision or action the will of God will be made clear; and you will have a new conception of God, a deeper insight into his nature and heart of Love, which shall be for yourself alone, a rapturous experience, to abide your precious perquisite forever, the rich guardian of those long waiting hours.--David

Edna McConnell Reveals Personality in Writing

Last December, Mrs. Edna McConnell joined the staff of Trevecca Nazarene College, and since that time, has done much to improve the quality of our journalism department. She attended Sangamon State University in Springfield, Illinois, where she was proud to gain her Master of Arts, in Public Affairs Reporting.

Being a talented writer, Mrs. McConnell was able to have her own daily column in a Danville newspaper. She continued to climb the ladder of success, and had articles published in "Illinois Issues," which is a government magazine, and also the "Chicago Daily News." She added much experience to her career when she became a legislative reporter in Springfield. Her efforts of determination in the field of writing were rewarded, and she gained the position of editor, at a weekly magazine, in Georgetown, Illinois.

Writing is more than just a job to Mrs. McConnell. Instead, it has become a very significant part of her life. "I love to write because I have a love affair with words," she stated with a sense of satisfaction. "To see the proper use of words, to say something specific, gives me a special pleasure," she added. With her outstanding background and years of experience, the congenial woman has the ability to write on a variety of subjects. Her articles are sometimes biographical, or politically oriented, and at other times, inspirational in nature.

Inspiration plays a large part in writing, she believes. "There are times when I have to write. It just comes and I put it down," the proud journalist commented. She has an abundance of advice for those interested in writing, perhaps as a profession. "Write and polish your work. Submit manuscripts to any and all magazines and newspapers, even helping someone compile a term paper will give you an advantage and a way to learn," she spoke, an amount of certainty in her voice.

Contrary to popular belief, writers do not shut themselves up in a room with a typewriter, until their life is over, and await the world to view them a success. Or at least Mrs. McConnell doesn't. Just a few days ago, she was presented one of ten publication awards, for an article which was incorporated into a textbook for political science.

She enjoys traveling, and has visited Europe several times with her husband, James. A special interest in archaeology has taken her to Egypt in Greece, Jericho, and other places. She related what seemed to be a very exciting trip to the caves where the Dead Sea Scrolls were found.

On top of all this, Mrs. McConnell takes an interest in several hobbies. One is making collages of snapshots. She also refinishes lamps, which many people of campus have been delighted to buy. This decorative ability runs deep, in that Mrs. McConnell is a family woman. She has four children and six grandchildren.

More importantly, she is indebted to her family, that is—the family of God. In her work and her career, she has served the Creator for all that he has created her. She shared the parable of Jesus, when he turned the water to wine. Someone had said that the best wine had been saved for the last. This is the promise which Mr. McConnell has built her life upon. In the last days of her career, he has given her the very best. To sum up her Christian life, she quotes the small boy who has just said a verse of scripture incorrectly, "The Lord is my shepherd, I have all I want."

Dr Mark R. Moore

Moore: Decisions Important

By President MARK R. MOORE

The story is told of the farm-hand who was so successful cutting hay, milking cows, plowing the fields and completing all the other heavy tasks on the farm that his boss promoted him to sorting the potatoes. He was to put the large potatoes on one side and the small potatoes on the other side.

Within four hours the farmer came by to see how he was doing with his new executive position and found the fellow out cold. When he revived he asked him, "You worked all day in the heat and cold outside doing heavy labor and seemed to do well but why in just four hours have you conked out with this new job. What is the matter?" The farm-hand replied, "It is these decisions that get me."

Your success this year will be determined in part how you make decisions. The plan that works best for me is to: Survey the situation and try to comprehend all that is involved. With that in mind I try to follow a program of "putting the little potatoes in their place and large ones in their place."

It's not easy with certain decisions. Often the involvement is beyond me. I find strength in counsel with friends and associates. And beyond that, when I wait for and receive insight from God the decision is unmistakably correct.

Africa Riots: Change Inevitable

By PAUL E. CLECKNER

The scene of Black Students in protest looked as if it came from Harlem or Neward in the 60's. This time though it was several thousand miles away and the violence was disrupting now in the Black townships of South Africa. Rioting not only occupied in the cities of Johannesburg and Pretoria but in the southern coastal metropolis.

School children joined the adults in protest over the racial policies enacted in the white minority government. They were protesting such policies as unequal education and the disallowment of Blacks to town property, also the poor jobs and housing available to them. As the crowds enlarged the police cordons came into sight the protest turned into a riot. Police in hope of dispersing the crowd released tear gas canisters and unleashed attack dogs, thus setting off riots which waged for three days and nights in Cape Town. When things had finally settled down 29 people had been killed, raising the total to 212 since rioting had broke out two months ago in Johannesburg's black township of Soweto, and more than 100 injured.

Under pressure to survive, Prime Minister John Vorster had several prominent black leaders appeased. He further warned that any such actions by Blacks in these townships or anywhere in South Africa would be dwelt with sharply and forcefully.

Further problems developed in South Africa took a diplomatic stand opposing these while ally Rhodesia's attack against black forces in Mozambique.

Although many nations including the United States have insisted that the countries of South Africa and Rhodesia formulate a plan for black rule. But it appears that Prime Minister John Vorster of Rhodesia and Prime Minister John Vorster of South Africa are not formulating a plan for black rule anytime in the near future.

Blood Drive Students Sacrifice To Help

The students of Trevecca College are a privileged group of people. Within Trevecca's populace a person can find the opportunity to know Christ and have his sins covered by the blood. In short one could call this action "a life after death insurance policy;" the policy agent being Jesus Christ.

It is a practice of our society to hold the policy of one or more types of insurance. The title of this coverage is the Bloodmobile. Every year Civitans sponsor the Bloodmobile. A percentage of the enrollment is asked for by the Red Cross. If as a student body we reach or top the percentage set by the Red Cross, they offer blood to any Trevecca student or faculty free of charge in case of accident, surgery, and even death. So far the Red Cross has not had any claims from the dead.

One of the greatest discoveries ever made was to use blood from one human and save the life of another. Blood supplies major operations and transplants. Blood also helps medical science and their ability to make new discoveries. There is just one problem, human blood cannot be manufactured—it must be given.

Civitans will soon be asking for your help, here are some facts you might want to know. Giving blood will not weaken you! The average person has about 12 pints of blood. Forty-eight hours after giving he still has about 12 pints of blood. If you ever need blood, the only costs to you is for processing and lab work, the blood is free for a period of six months for you and your family. You can eat before giving, just don't load up on fatty foods. Do they keep a record of my donation? Yes. The Red Cross gives the new donor a Record Card with date of donations and blood type for emergency purposes.

One might ask, "What's the experience like?" The time involved is about forty-five minutes to an hour, most of which is taken up with a quick medical examination. First a few questions about your medical history. Then temperature and blood pressure are taken. Then you get to give your pint of blood! A good nurse can give a needle without you knowing, unless you are lying there watching with anticipation of great pain. I've given five times and only once have I experienced any discomfort with the actual giving of the blood. Giving the blood only takes five to six minutes. From my own experience I found that if I take my time and relax a little, then I can leave as chipper as I came. The first time I gave I tried to see how fast I could fill the pint. I ended up fainting. After you finish giving your pint, your are ask to have some good coke and cookies to replenish the loss of fluid and replenish the pep you lost momentarily. Then you can be happily on your way.

The Civitans need your help. The cost of the coverage is very small. And once you try it you'll be surprised at just how little it takes to give so much.

Retreat Planned

Staff Writer: ROB MORRIS

All you that like the rugged outdoor life get your gear together. Your big chance to get away to the wilderness will be from Friday, October 1st until Sunday, October 3rd. The event is the All School Fall Retreat and this year it's being held at Standing Stone State Park near Livingston, Tennessee. Tentative price for the retreat has been set at $7.00 per person.

Co-chairpersons for the Fall Retreat Committee are Dan Humble and Kim Wonders. Both agree that this year's retreat should be a fine one for all who attend. They were also quick to add that the retreat committee has been working extremely hard for this event.

According to Chairperson, Humble, things could be going a little smoother. Humble feels that, "a retreat committee should be appointed now instead of waiting until May. To get the best site and speaker, the retreat should already be in the planning stages." Humble is still very optimistic about the '76 Fall Retreat and foresees it as being beneficial to all who participate. Tickets will be on sale September 20.

Latham Hailed

By PATTY CHAMBERS

Rev. Harold Latham proudly accepted the "Staff member of the year award," on September 3, 1976.

As you will agree, his dedicated service over-qualifies him for this award. Recently, he received his MA degree from Scarrit College. Latham has pastored churches in four states over a period of twenty years. He taught in two secondary schools, served as chaplain at a Gary, Indiana Hospital and in the United States Marines, worked with Eskimos in Alaska where he helped organize an elementary and day-care center and repeated this work in Mexico.

Rev. Latham worked in a school for the handicapped in San Francisco and served as Minister of Yough and Music in Berkley, CA. He was made a Kentucky Colonel by the governor of Kentucky for his work with young people in that state.

Also, Latham wrote and produced a program for NBC in San Francisco, Faith of Our Fathers. The program was backgrounded with musical compositions. He is presently writing a book on church relations and recruitment.

The Reverend Mr. Latham holds the AA degree from Sonoma Valley State College, the BA from San Francisco State University, and has completed all but the residency requirements for another MA at SFSU. He travels about 50,000 miles each year for T.N.C., preaches approximately 250 times and has a record of recruiting 250 to 275 students for the college each year.

PA Program Starts

Eleven persons, five men and six women, have been chosen for the first year's students in the Texas A. & M.; Michelene newly established Physician's Collins, Knoxville, Trevecca and Associate program at Trevecca UT; Ken DeLong, Tomahawk, Nazarene College. Because of Kentucky, BS, Trevecca; the unusually large number of Beverly Dennis, Madison, applicants, a screening board Tennessee, Olivet College; Steve interviewed and made the final Fischer, Sandusky, Ohio, BS, decisions on those entering the East Tennessee State; Sherry new course of study. Foster, Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, junior at Trevecca; Jack Hinton, Wrightsville, Georgia, BS, Trevecca; Anita Jackson, Gallatin, Tennessee, junior at Trevecca; Karen Scheicz, Birmingham, Alabama, BS in Nursing, Olivet College; Linda Stover, Nashville, MS, Peabody College and Alfred Thomas, Howell, Michigan, AA, Washtenaw Community College.

The Physician's Associate program is open to senior college applicants only and is the first to be established in Tennessee since being authorized by the state legislature.

Students must complete a concentrated course of study in the sciences and 48 weeks of clinical practice to prepare for the PA degree.

The program, headed by Dr. Earl Vastbinder, formerly of the University of Kentucky, accepts only students who have completed two years of college work.

This initial class of eleven was chosen from 75 applicants. Most of those accepted have already

In order to create and sustain a high quality program, the number of students is limited and the planned yearly increases are about five to ten students, according to Dr. William Strickland, dean of Trevecca Nazarene College.

Fine Arts Retreat Upcoming

By KATHY FULKERSON

If you think things are too quiet around campus now, wait until September 17-18. Everyone will be packing up and going to the Fine Arts Retreat. The concert choir, chapel choir, band and all music majors who wish to attend will leave Saturday, September 17, for a weekend of fun, work, and inspiration.

Over 100 students are expected to attend the retreat, at the Nazarene Campground, where they will rehearse together individually and in groups. Entertainment will take the form of skits and various types of recreation and games.

Along with their other activities, the students will be practicing with the new handbells, recently obtained by the Trevecca Music Department. Departmental handbooks will also be given out and plans for the coming year will be discussed.

Members of the faculty who will supervise the retreat and conduct rehearsal are Professors Barbara McClain, Fred Gartlett, Fred Mund, James Jarrett, Francis Glass, and their families. Professor McClain is anticipating a great time at the retreat and expects it not only to better prepare the students, but also to give them a change to know the faculty better.

Upcoming events in the FA Department are the Fall Festival of the Arts, November 19-20, and recital September 29 at 3:30 pm by concert pianist Enid Katahn, before her concert tour.

Also, a visitor from NASM (National Association of the Schools of Music) will be examining TNC's Music Department September 28-29 for possible Accreditation.

Giving, living, knowing, loving

All feelings that do not come to their peak in one lifetime.

All kinds, but all the same.

Rock, Roll, Pop, Country -

A feeling that you will never forget if its yours in your heart.

Ideas that flow like the winds on the oceans.

"Music."

You give the people voices in the house of all houses.

Involvement Offered

Through TNC Clubs

By Staff Writer
FONDA FERGUSON

Every fall as Trevecca is revived by the return of her students, the group referred to as 'new students' is confronted with strange and uncommon experiences. One such experience is that of hearing unfamiliar words and abbreviations such as Stuco, CWA, and Circle K. As the students learn their way from the dorm to their mail box, these strange words begin to represent an assortment of Trevecca clubs.

Below is a list of some of these clubs, a summary of their purpose, and their president's name. Use this list to select which clubs to join on Club Rush Day, September 23rd.

Circle K: men's service club for campus and community; members accepted by application-Jewry Crummer

Civinettes: provides services to campus and community; women only- Marilyn Prindle

Civitas: provides services to campus and community; men only- Robert Bowden

CWA: Christian Workers Association; outreach ministry to young and old-Pam Foster

Forensics: intercollegiate speech competition; includes traveling-Peggy Jenkins

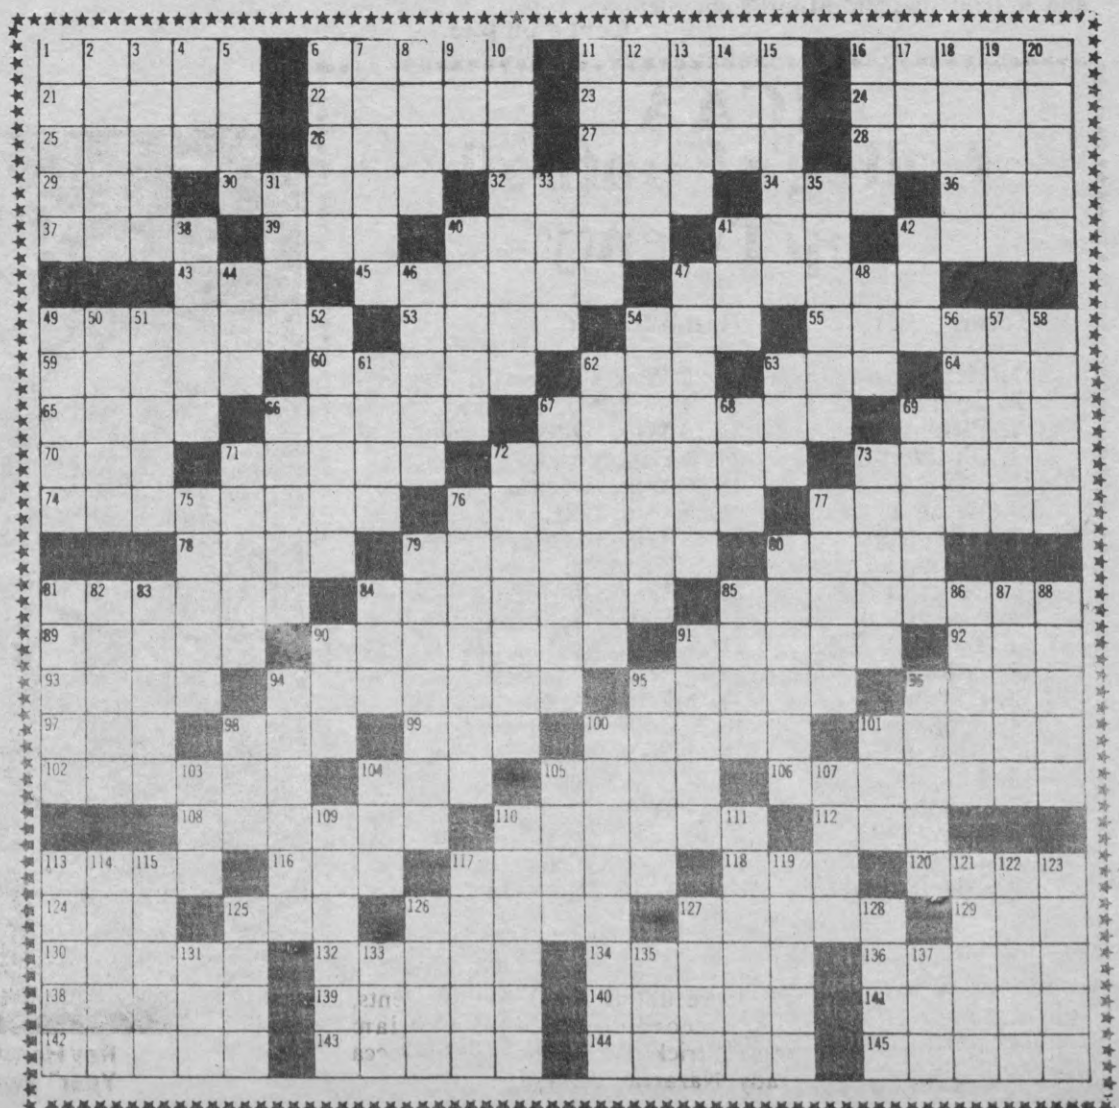

K-Ettes: women's service club for campus community; limited membership through application-Kim Wonders

Project: Invasion: student evangelistic teams holding weekend revivals across Trevecca zone-Dan Humble

Stuco: Student Council-Jeff Klepfer

TIAA: Trevecca Intramural Athletic Association-Billy Strickland

NFL Action: No Upsets

By STEVE BORTNER

Raiders-Steelers. Oakland upset the two-time Super Bowl defending champion Pittsburgh Steelers scoring 17 points in the last five minutes of the game, with rookie Fred Steinfort kicking a 21-yard field goal with 18 seconds left to win 21-18.

Stabler hit five passes, including a 10-yarder to tight end Dave Casper to pull the Raiders within seven points with 2:56 left and then personally wound up a 29-yard drive with a two-yard run around left end to tie the score.

Steinfort got his change after Willie Hall grabbed an interception for Oakland after being tipped by Otis Sistrunk. That put the ball on the Steeler 12 with 50 seconds left.

Broncos-Bengals. Trailing 7-3 with 10 minutes left in the game, quarterback Ken Anderson, two-time NFL passing champ, went to the air for a 27-yard touchdown to Chip Meyers and followed with a six-yard scoring toss to Bruce Coslet to lift the Cincinnati Bengals to a 17-7 victory over the Denver Broncos. Myers, playing with a broken nose, helped set up Cincinnati's two fourth-quarter scores with crucial catches of 13 and 20 yards.

Two-time Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin made his NFL debut with 38 yards in 12 carries.

Colts-Patriots. Bert Jones, 17 of 23 passes for 190 yards, passed to Glenn Doughty for two touchdowns in a 41-second span late in the first half to lead Baltimore to a 27-13 victory over New England.

With just 22 seconds left in the first half Baltimore safety Jackie Wallace intercepted a Steve Grogan pass and returned it 42 yards to the New England 20. After a sideline pass to Lydell Mitchell to the one yardline and a five-yard offside penalty, Jones found Doughty in the end zone.

Jets-Browns. Quarterbacks Mike Phipps and Brian Sipe riddled the New York Jets' defense with five TD passes, three to Reggie Rucker, as the Cleveland Browns opened their NFL season with a 38-17 victory.

scoring passes, two to Rucker, in the second quarter moved him within one of his 1975 total and brought the Browns back from 10-0 deficit.

Sipe, relieving Phipps due to a sprained shoulder, connected for two second-half TD passes, one to Rucker and a 26-yarder to Steve Holden with 1:28 left.

The Jets only scoring threat of the third period was blunted by a Cleveland goalline stand at the one-yard line.

Bucs-Oilers. Tampa Bay shutout 20-0 by the Oilers as Houston quarterback Dan Pastorni threw two touchdown passes and safety C. L. Whittington had interceptions of eight and 50 yards.

The first score was on a 13-yard Pastorni pass to fullback Fred Willis before intermission. After the eight yard interception by Whittington, Skip Butler kicked a 33-yard field goal. Later in the game Butler booted a 44-yarder to cap Houston's scoring.

Chargers-Chiefs. San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts endured four long touchdown marches to defeat the Kansas City Chiefs 30-16.

rgers, winners in only two games last year, scored on drives of 80 and 67 yards in the first half, and 74 and 86-yard thrusts in the third quarter.

The Chiefs took the lead at the half on TD passes of eight and 10 yards from Mike Livingston to tight ends Walter White and Billy Masters, and Jan Stenerud's 26-yard field goal. They had to take the second half kickoff 79 yards in nine plays to comeback from a 16-13 deficit at intermission.

Bills-Dolphins. Bob Griese threw a 30-yard scoring toss early in the third quarter and Garo Yepremian kicked three field goals to give the Miami Dolphins a 30-21 victory over returning O. J. Simpson and the Buffalo Bills.

Buffalo scored two touchdowns with 53-yard and 58-yard TD passes to John Holland, a 1974 draft pick from Tennessee State. Simpson had 28 yards rushing on five carries and an electrifying 43-yard pass play for a near score.

Miami scored with a five-yard run by Benny Molone, a one-yard run by Don Nottingham, a 25, 20, and 30 field goal and Moore's completion.

TNC Rips Aquinas In Fall Opener

The baseball team has started Fall workouts and Coach Bill Green has his sights on another winning season.

There are quite a few returning letermen and several players who have been recruited. Players like Rob Gassie, Tommy Hawkins, and Charlie "Monkey" Tyler have shown, however that "walk-ons" can make it too. Green has said that "On paper this is the best team we've ever had... the most challenging team." Support the team as they play scrimmage games with other local college teams, and the individual players vie for their positions.

The Trojan's first exhibition double-header was at home on Saturday against Aquinas and the Trojans were victorious in both games against the cross-town rivals.

Final Scores: First game TNC 3 Aquinas 2.
Second game, TNC 9, Aquinas 1

PE Dept Offers Varied Program

Sports Editor: Steve Bortner

The Department of Physical Education, Health, and Recreation is working to contribute to the development of the whole man by caring for his physical as well as his mental growth. A full program is planned to meet the needs of the student whether it be preparation for teaching or coaching, training for assistances in athletic programs, participation in sports for the development of skills, or simply spending some time away from his books for time recreation.

Three activity courses are required of every student graduating from Trevecca. A broad spectrum is offered in exercise, golf, archery, handball, racquetball, badminton, gymnastics, volleyball, bowling, basketball, baseball, football, track and field, swimming, life saving, scuba diving, angling, self defense, and tennis. In addition to these participation classes, professional courses are offered for a scientific study of the body and the physiology of exercise. These prepare the student to teach physical education in elementary or secondary schools. They also prepare him for work in community, camp, and church recreational programs.

TNC Blessed With Gifted Staff

Trevecca is fortunate to have a staff of excellently trained, good Christian men and women to head the athletic coaching responsibilities. Each of them have their own duties and, yet, work very well with a team. Under Athletic Director Elmore Vail are Bill Green, Alan Smith, Debbie Lore, and Mrs. Carolyn Smith.

Mr. Elmore Vail has earned two A.B.'s in Mathematics and Physical Ed. at Northwest Nazarene College (NNC), his M.S. (ED) in Education Administration, Physical Education at the University of Idaho, and has done additional graduate study at IU and the University of Oregon.

In his earlier years, he taught and coached high school football, basketball, and baseball at Northwest Nazarene High School in 1947-49, 51-53, and 1958 (where he was the principal in 1958 also). He also served as a professor at Olivet Nazarene College (1954-57), and taught and coached basketball (1959-65) and baseball (1959-1974) at NNC. At times in his career he has been an American Legion baseball coach and church and city recreational director.

Vail currently teaches the coaching technique and administration of physical education classes and is head basketball coach at Trevecca. Though good recruiting Coach Vail has improved the team's records in many categories. Even with Trevecca now competing on the VSAC (Volunteer State Athletic Conference) schedule, the 75-76 Trojans improved their offensive scoring 8.5 points per game (from 70.7 to 79.2) and has lessened their opponents scoring by 8.8 points per game (from 94.4 to 85.6). That is a total point spread decline of 23.6 in 74-75 to only 6.4 in 75-76. Last year Vail was pleased with an improving season and a double victory over Mount Vernon on Homecoming weekend.

Mr. Bill Green is academic chairman of the physical education department and teaches those classes concerning the scientific and foundational areas of physical education. Green has received his B. and M.A. degrees from the University of Northern Colorado. Before coming to TNC he has taught physical education and coached various sports in the state of Kansas. He has also been a head principal.

Bill Green came to Trevecca in the fall of 1969 to head coach his first college baseball team. In fact, he stated the baseball program at TNC. And what a job he has done with it. He's gone from a borrowed area of swimming and life saving city ballfield to possibly the best looking field in the city, from Jr. colleges to schedule including the nation's top teams annually, from fourteen games in 1970 to a fifty-three schedule in 1976.

Green was voted Outstanding Faculty Member at TNC for the 1974-75 year. With the help of a 32-21 record for last year's baseball team, Coach Green earned the 1975-76 VSAC Coach of the Year and NAIA District 24 Coach of the Year honors.

Mr. Alan Smith is an associate professor in the department and deals mainly with those classes having to do with recreation. He is also Advising Head of the Intramural Program.

He received an A.B. from Asbury College, an M.A. from George Washington University, and has done additional graduate work in the field of recreation. Before coming to Trevecca, he taught Jr. High School in Maryland for three years and at Asbury College for four years.

Since he has been at TNC he has head-coached women's tennis in the fall of 73 and men's tennis since 1972-73. He now owns a 36-38 overall record with men's varsity tennis, with a 5-10 record in 72-73, a 8-12 record in 73-74, a 10-10 record and the SCAC championship in handball courts, and a 13-6 record, the SCAC championship, and a 4-4 record in VSAC competition during 1976. In 75-76 he was voted VSAC Coach of the Year for Tennis by his conference colleagues.

Miss Debbie Lore is an assistant professor in the department teaching several of the women's sports and professional courses. She is the coach for the women's volleyball, tennis, and basketball teams.

Lore went to MVNC during 1969-70 and then transferred to Trevecca to earn her A.B. in 1972. From 72-74 she studied at MTSU and obtained her M.Ed. in 1974. Beginning in the summer of 1977 she plans to pursue her doctorate.

Coach Lore has let the women's tennis team since the spring of 1974, has organized a women's volleyball team and led them through an extramural program in the fall of 1973 to an intercollegiate basketball last year.

Mr. Carolyn Smith is a part-time instructor in the department. She received an A.B. from Asbury College and an M.A. from the University of Kentucky. Most of the Mrs. Smith's teaching is in the

Besides the Intramural Program, Trevecca participates in sports on the varsity level in men's and women's basketball, baseball, cross country, golf, men's and women's tennis, and women's volleyball, and is currently a member of VSAC (Volunteer State Athletic Conference).

The TNC student has available to him the finest, in physical education equipment. The Physical Education Center has been a valuable addition to the campus. The full size gym, Olympic size pool, weight room (which has been supplied mostly with the help of the Powerlifting Team Coach Les Cramer), two 8-12 record in 73-74, a 10-10 record and the SCAC championship in handball courts, and a 13-6 record, the SCAC championship, and a 4-4 record in VSAC competition during 1976. In 75-76 he was voted VSAC Coach of the Year for Tennis by his conference colleagues. Behind the P.E. center, Jackson Athletic Field provides six lighted tennis courts (definitely the best-looking in the city and host of VSAC tennis tournament), two softball fields, a football field, and an enclosed regulation baseball diamond.

Intramural Program Expanded for 1976-77

The 1976-77 Trevecca Intramural Program is shaping up to be one of the most exciting and enthusiastic activities of campus life at TNC. The Intercollegiate Program at Trevecca is growing very rapidly and along with this growth a good solid Intramural Program has also been growing. To be known in the coming year as TIA (Trevecca Intramural Association), this body will be serving diligently to strengthen Intramural activities here at Trevecca. An Intramural committee consisting of seven voting members and three non-voting members will serve to facilitate the needs of the Intramural Program. Interests in any Intramural sport will be supported with sufficient leadership and concern for your involvement. New ideas and suggestions for improvement in any phase of the program will be welcomed and will help to build a successful program.

During fall registration, all new students (freshman and transfers) were assigned to a society (Alpha, Beta, Delta, and Gamma). When a person is assigned he becomes a member of that society for as long as he is a student at TNC. If in the event any member of TIA leaves school for a quarter or more and then returns, he shall remain a member of the society in which he began. Any returning student who is not sure of their placement into one of these societies, should contact Billy Strickland, ASB Vice-President of Intramural Activities. A society placement list of all new freshman and transfer students will be posted in the gym in the near future.

On Monday, September 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the basement of the P.E. Center, there was an informal mixer designed to include everyone planning to participate in the Intramural Program, whether through actual competition or support. This kick-off to the Intramural Program included several important items of concern, such as an explanation of the program for fall quarter, discussion of the point system determining Society of the Year, and changes from last year's program. There were also separate meetings of each society in order to elect society representatives and team captains for the fall team sports.

A brief explanation of the respective sports for each quarter is as follows: Fall-Football (tackle for men, flag for women), Volleyball, Tennis and Handball; Winter-Basketball, Racquetball, Table Tennis, and wrestling; Spring-Softball, Swimming, and Track and Field. This variety of Intramural sports will give our program at Trevecca excellent choices. If there is a sufficient interest for some other sport, an effort will be made to include that sport.

A notice about health is important. Those actively participating in intramural activities with physical impairments such as epilepsy, asthma, heart trouble, contact lenses, etc., are asked to notify the TIA President so he will be aware of the impairments in case of an emergency. The information will be held in strict confidence.

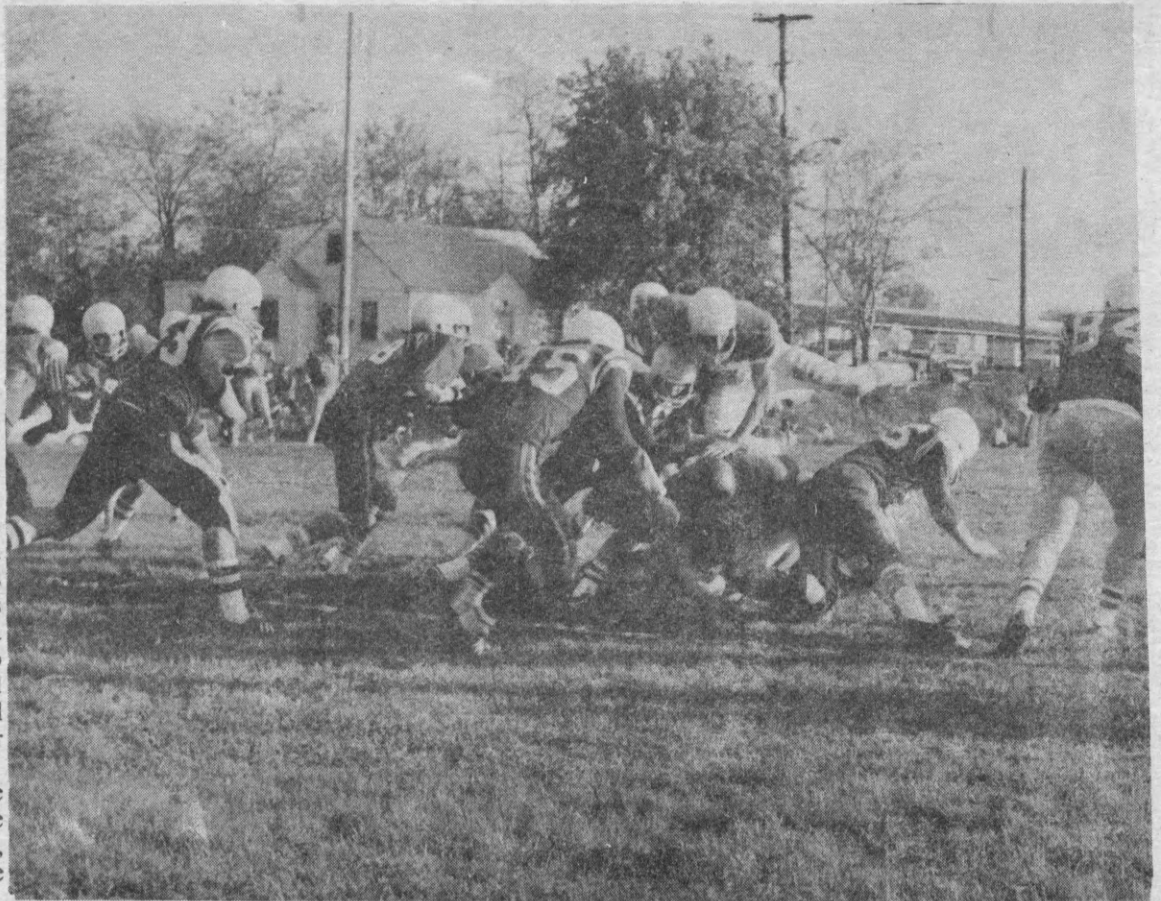

In accordance with the dress code in the student handbook, dress for intramurals and other physical education activities are as follows:

For Men-Shoes and Shirts at all times. Cut off shirts, sleeveless shirts, bare midriffs, muscle shirts, T-shirts, shorts, and cut-offs are permissible. For Women-Shoes at all times. No tank-tops, short shorts, tight-fitting apparel, halter tops, braless looks, or bare midriffs. Shorts, bermuda shorts, cut-offs, and pull-over shirts are permissible.

Any person who is involved in a varsity sport is ineligible for that intramural sport for that year.

Anyone playing intramural sports must be carrying a study load of seven hours minimum.

Coach Alan Smith (Faculty Director of TIA) and Billy Strickland (ASB Vice-President of Intramural Activities) are doing an outstanding job of guiding the Trevecca Intramural Program. Support TIA!!!

TIA Football Approaching

By STEVE BORTNER

1976 TIA Football

The TIA Football pre-season has begun as most teams are spending a lot of time getting in shape for that September 25 debut. No predictions have been made yet as to who might take the championship. It may take several games before any team stands out as the leader. Melvin Tootoo, the popular choice going through registration line, has teamed up with his all-star brother Pomar on Beta's squad. But as years of past football seasons have shown, it will take more than individual standouts to gain a championship. Gamma's 1975 Champ's can second that.

Court Reservation Policy

Reservations may be made by presenting I.D. cards to the PEC Secretary. Reservations are good for ONE hour per match and must be made at least ONE hour in advance and no more than ONE day in advance. Those with reservations for handball or tennis courts have priority over those who do not. The PEC does not furnish the equipment!

Notice: If you haven't signed up to compete in the Handball and/or Tennis Tournament, you may do so in the main foyer of the PEC.
