

PRESIDENT EMERITUS - A. B. MACKKEY DIES

Dr. Charles I. Childers

If Dr. Mackey had written the heading of this article, he might well have told his readers that he had transferred to the University of Heaven, for he had a delightful way of mixing the heavenly with the earthly and the Biblical with the present day-to-day affairs; This was not just a literary device or figure of speech; It reflected his deepest philosophy of life. He seldom distinguished between the secular and the sacred. To him, everything that was legitimate was sacred - his God reigned over all of life.

Alexander Benjamin Mackey was born in Highway, a village in Clinton County, Kentucky, on April 16, 1897. His parents were George and Maria (Ewing) Mackey. His father died while he was still a babe-in-arms, and the courage and faith which his mother demonstrated in rearing her fatherless children gave A. B. Mackey the most powerful lessons in faith and the clearest insights into the meaning of the Christian life, which he was to learn in his long life. All who have heard Dr. Mackey speak more than a time or two remember his telling illustrations from his experiences in those early years, and he often demonstrated the final and complete vindication of Mother Mackey's faith by the fact that he, her youngest child, as Trevecca College President, awarded his mother her college degree when she was seventy-two (72) years old.

A. B. Mackey began his schooling in a holiness school in Highway, Kentucky, which had been founded by the famous holiness evangelist, John Keen. He went to Clinton County High School where he graduated in 1919, but not until he had completed a tour of duty with the 67th Field Artillery in World War I. He began his long teaching career before he finished high school, serving in Kentucky public schools periodically from 1915 to 1925.

He began his college work at Olivet Nazarene College, but he transferred to Eastern Kentucky

State Teacher's College (now Eastern Kentucky State University). He had the distinction of being the first student in the history of that college to complete requirements for a degree. In fact, he was the only student to qualify for a degree that year (1924), so he had to wait a year to graduate in the college's first commencement in 1925.

In that year, he came to Trevecca, where for forty-two years he served the youth of our church in a most magnificent way, yet with a most humble spirit.

In 1926, he received his M. A. Degree from George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville, Tennessee. Then at various times during his career at Trevecca, he did additional graduate work in several distinguished institutions - including George Peabody College, Vanderbilt University, Harvard University and The University of Chicago.

In 1935, he had the extreme good fortune (or divine blessing) of taking as his wife, Miss Lyla Thrasher of Albany, Kentucky, and only God could properly evaluate the blessing which this great woman has been to her husband and to the College - as first lady of the campus, as one of the most admired teachers, and as the major builder of our now most impressive Mackey Library collection.

One of the many honors received by A. B. Mackey during his long career was the warding of the LL.D. degree to him by Northwest College in 1941. He also received the Distinguished Educator Award the first year it was offered at the General Assembly of the Church of the Nazarene in 1960.

Dr. Mackey held so many positions at Trevecca that he used to say that he had held every office from that of janitor down to the presidency. He began his career at Trevecca as a teacher, teaching many different subjects including economics, education, psychology, and foreign languages. He was always the teacher, the educator, even after he became an administrator. He was always teaching - in class or not - whenever or wherever he found someone to teach. Also, during thirty-seven years as an administrator, he always had at least one course per quarter to teach, and after his retirement from the presidency in 1963, he continued to teach for four more years.

Some of the administrative positions held by Dr. Mackey are: Trevecca High school Principal, 1926-29; Dean of the College 1929-36; Acting President 1934-36; and President 1936-63. Upon retirement from the presidency in 1963 he was granted the honorary position of President Emeritus.

Dr. A. B. Mackey was a philosopher as well as an educator. Out of his Bible study, his religious faith, and his rich experience he had worked out a Christian philosophy which was distinctly his own. One could write a book at this point, but perhaps a listing of a few tenets or illustrations from his philosophy will be revealing:

1. In the area of stewardship he often declared that we will have to give account to God not only for the money that we earn but also for what we could have earned but did not.

2. As stated earlier, he saw no basic distinction between the sacred and the secular. Every legitimate activity, pursuit or study was sacred to him; all relate to God's work and God's world. He felt that teaching English in a Christian school is just as religious as teaching Bible, and making money (in harmony with God's perfect will) is just as religious as preaching.

3. In class room teaching he felt that it was far more important to teach the great truths of life than to teach the subject matter (though he never wanted the latter neglected).

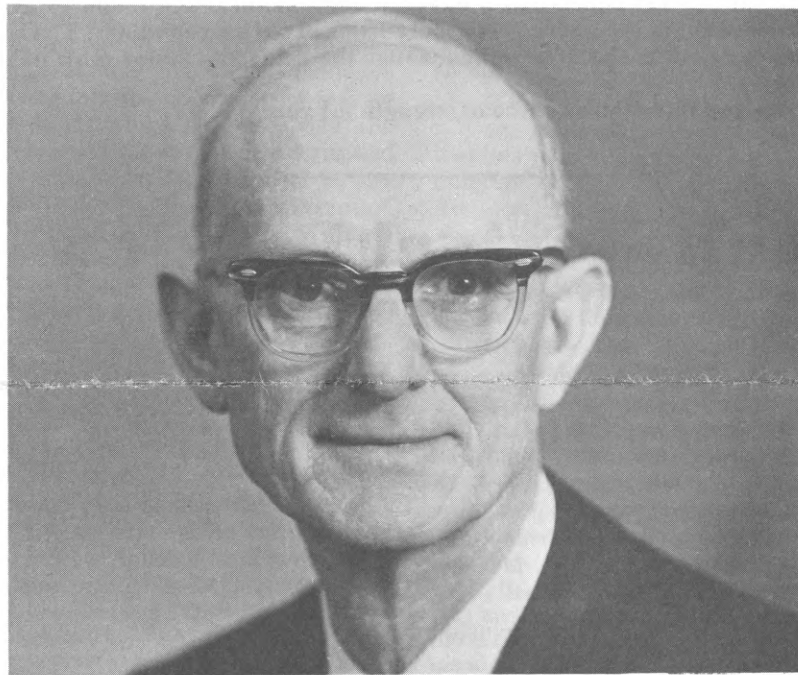

When one tries to measure the man, A. B. Mackey, he had better have an extremely long measuring rod. His contribution to Trevecca Nazarene College is so great that the only adequate and clear statement would be to say simply that "without A. B. Mackey there would be no Trevecca today". It would be only a fading memory. He took the College when it was all but dead - many, in fact, said that it was dead. Yet before he gave up the presidency a new campus had been purchased, seven major buildings were built and one rebuilt after a fire, and the academic program had been developed to the point where membership in the regional accrediting association had become a distant possibility.

As a man, Dr. Mackey was different from anyone we have ever known - all great men are unique. But the years which some of us have spent with him have given us a glimpse into his mind, his soul and we are ready to declare him one of the best Christians we have ever known. If one had to list his outstanding Christian virtues, the first would be humility. He was a great man who never knew he was great. He was also totally unselfish and completely consecrated to God. Once when a faculty member told him he had an offer in another Nazarene College, Dr. Mackey told him he wanted him to serve where he would mean most to the Kingdom (and this was a faculty member whom he wanted and needed very much to keep).

As one of the faculty members who has served for many years under Dr. Mackey, I would like to address this final request to him: "Hold a place for me in the University of Heaven. I want to spend eternity by your side."

President Emeritus, A.B. Mackey

Out of Trevecca's Past..... From Greenies to Rats..... Freshmen are Still the Same

The day dawned bright and clear, and the sun beamed down on a troop of sleepy-eyed "Rats". When was this, you ask? Only 20 years ago, in October, 1953.

Let's see exactly what happened then.

"Shine on; shine on harvest moon," is being hummed; girls are plucking straw out of their hair; boys are rubbing their poor, tired feet; and all you see is green, green, green. What is going on? Why, this is Freshman Recognition Week.

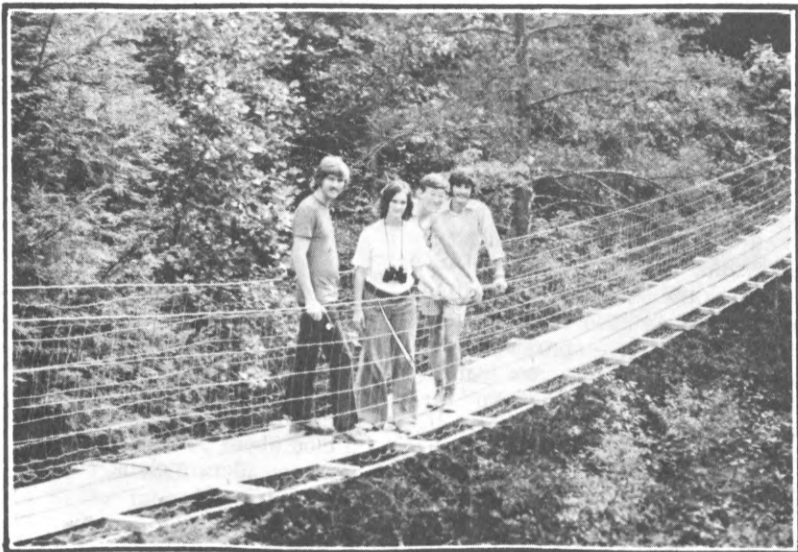

"The whole week has been crammed full with exciting events. Monday morning dawned bright and early on a vividly decorated McClurkan building. One hundred thirty-eight Freshmen were led into chapel by the Sophomore officers while "Pomp and Circumstance" was rendered on the organ. After chapel they were given the extra special privilege of being first in lunch line with their trays being carried by sophomore hosts and hostesses to a special reserved section of the cafeteria. Tuesday morning around 4:00 a.m. lights began flickering all over the campus and sleepy-eyed girls and boys stumbled to the McClurkan building. Here they started on an early morning hike touring, of all places, the graveyard. After the hike the Sophomores served hot coffee and doughnuts to a group of tired Freshmen. Wednesday was set aside for spiritual emphasis. At 7:00 a fine looking group gathered in front of the Administration Building from which they marched to College Hill Church, sitting in a special reserved section for the Freshmen. During the Thursday noon hour, Dale Martin, acting as master of ceremonies, interviewed the Freshmen on the steps of the Administration Building. From all over the campus resounded cheers of Kentucky, Alabama, West Virginia, and all of our other great states of the Southeastern zone.

"It is not over yet, Freshmen. Friday night Freshman talent is being represented in a fine arts program under the theme of "Harvest Moon." And then to climax the week, the Sophomore class combined with the Freshman are going on a hayride at Riverwood Riding Academy. Sounds exciting, doesn't it?

"We have told you; we have tried to show you; we want you to know, Freshmen. Welcome! Welcome!"

And so we, also, have tried to show our welcome to you through our own Rat activities - Glad to have you at Trevecca!

These Trevecca students are having a "swinging" time at Falls Creek Falls State Park, scene of the All-School Retreat. More pictures of this retreat are found on page three.

The Terror of Loneliness

By Linda Cramer

One of the worst feelings in the world must be that of loneliness. Have you ever felt so lonely and lost that you wished you weren't even alive, maybe went to the extreme of thinking of killing yourself? No, you say, but many people in the world at the very moment I am writing this are considering taking this very action.

Loneliness for you, if not this extreme, may be on a smaller scale - for example, let's use the new freshmen. Sorry, we don't mean to be picking on you all the time, but you are the perfect illustration for this - away from home and parents for the first time and having to make each and every decision for yourself at the drop of a hat; seeming to do everything wrong despite your efforts to act and look like one of the idolized (?) upper classmen (although many of the freshmen girls make the mistake of carrying purses, something which you will rarely catch an "old-timer" doing).

You soon become adjusted, though, to being away from home and fiending for yourself in the cruel, hard world at Trevecca Nazarene College. Sometimes you actually even convince yourself that you have things better here than what you did while you were home, although I think that's really seldom the case.

Then, at other times, you feel like you're going to go out of your tree or do something drastic if you don't get a chance to be alone to think things out, to sort out dreams and reality from their huge tangled mass. It's hard to find a place where we can do such contemplating on a campus as small as Trevecca's, sometimes hard to keep our sanity in the tension and hurry of class, work, and dorm life. Those who have cars or drive are fortunate - they can escape to a different atmosphere if they feel it necessary; the rest of us remain here and stick it out as best we can.

However, real peace and a haven from loneliness are found in a spirit and not in the physical characteristics of our surroundings, TNC campus or otherwise. It is found through the living and loving spirit of Christ.

May you find Him a source of strength for you.

THE PRICE WE PAY FOR THAT GOOD HOME COOKING.

Beyond Sentimentality
by Mike Mort

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

The following essay is one in a series of articles entitled "Beyond Sentimentality." The topic is relevant and decisively implicating - How do we communicate Christian love on a college campus?

"He prayeth best who loveth best all things both great and small.
For the dear God that loveth us
He made and loveth all".
Samuel Coleridge

There is nothing more sacred on this earth than interpersonal relationships. Nothing is more important than people. There are those that would die for an institution, or a scientific discovery, or a political cause; but Jesus said, "No greater love can a man have than to die for a friend." All of our ambitions, our goals, all of our "this life" investments seem so insignificant compared to the value of those with whom we live. We sit beside them in chapel. We eat with them in the cafeteria. We rub shoulders every day with our most valuable possessions.

Think of your best moment...a time in your life when everything seemed together and you were most happy. Was it not because of another person? Think of when you were most discouraged...a time when you were really hurt. Did not that, too, involve a relationship or maybe an absence of a relationship?

Our great moments are seldom solitary. There has never been a man that believed this more than Jesus. His life was an expression of this truth. He knew in depth that our relationship with the Father could be only as genuine as our relationship with those with whom we live. That is why he said: "Before you bring your gift to the altar, first make sure that you are at peace with your brother." It was a natural commentary of his life, for how could a man love God, whom he could not see, and at the same time neglect those around him whom he saw every day?

We may be sincere when in frustration we say like Mary Magdalene, "I don't know how to love him." But Jesus simply smiles and says like he has before, "In as much as you have done it unto one of the least of these, you have done it unto me."

Who do you know that may be inwardly discouraged or lonely? Who on campus feels insignificant and left out? - maybe because they don't look quite as good as we look, or they don't think quite as fast as we think. Maybe they are different, but that is the more reason why we should include them in our fellowship.

This is the essence of spiritual renewal. This is love which goes beyond the transparent sentimentality which so often characterizes our concern for others. It cuts through our self-centeredness, our good intentions, and even our pious testimonies. It calls for our time and energy. It involves an expenditure of ourselves. May we be disturbed enough to look inwardly. May we be moved enough to look out.

The Christian Workers Association provides weekly opportunities for Christians to share their faith in God. Their program of spiritual involvement includes:

Men's Metro. Workhouse	8:45 a.m.
Women's Jail	8:45 a.m.
Grace Rest Home	2:15 p.m.
Tennessee Youth Center	10:00 a.m. (Monthly)

Those interested in participating in a ministry of love to one or more of these places should meet at the front of McClurkin Auditorium on Sunday at the appointed times.

Applications will soon be available for all students interested in attending the annual "Religion Retreat." There will be special speakers and planned activities. The retreat will be October 12-15, so be on the lookout for further information available through the Ministerial Association.

There will be a revival at Trinity Church of the Nazarene, 1253 Vultee Boulevard, September 25 through September 30. Evangelist is Bob Hoots and song evangelists are Ralph and Joann Dunmire. Services begin at 7:15 p.m. The Trinity church bus will be parked in front of the cafeteria at 6:45 p.m. and will leave promptly at 7:00 p.m.

TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR SINGLE COLLEGE GIRLS WHO DON'T WANT TO STAY SINGLE

You should not be:

- I. a tightwad
- II. a career-borrower
- III. a hanger-on of upper classmen
- IV. a negative droop
- V. a clod about personal things
- VI. an inconsiderate clunk
- VII. a peacock
- XII. a braggart
- IX. a clam
- X. a "change everybody"

Fall Revival Preview

by Donna Smith

"Sweeping this way, yes sweeping this way; a mighty revival is sweeping this way!"

Monday night October 1 is the first night of our fall revival. Services will be held every morning at 10:00 a.m. Tuesday through Friday and every evening at 7:00 p.m. Monday through Friday in the chapel.

Our speaker will be C. William Fisher from California. He has been in evangelism for more than twenty-five years and is the evangelist on the Nazarene radio program, "Showers of Blessing."

We're counting on 100 percent participation. There will be competition for attendance by the various dorms. Each night David Foltz, Student Body president, will take a count of each dorm. Be sure you're there each night so your dorm will have the highest participation.

The Fall Revival can help us in many ways if we let it. Here are some comments of some of your classmates about last year's fall revival:

Yvonne Booth - "Good revival last year. It got the year started off well and unified the student body. It was very spiritual, and the Spirit was still felt weeks after the revival passed."

Wyn Smith - "Good while it lasted, and a good way to begin the year. The school needs revival."

Mike Blankenship - "As an incoming freshman, it was really good, and I hope we have another good one this year because we need it."

Danny Stroud - "Really helpful spiritually. I'm expecting and praying for an even greater one this year."

In the week leading up to the revival, there will be many activities going on to help us prepare for a great revival.

There will be a very informal time of prayer in the student prayer chapel before each service. During that time you may go and pray for the service.

Monday morning, October 1, during class chapel there will be class prayer meetings for the revival.

One way we can all help is by contributing to the pledge offering. If we all give at least a dollar, we can really feel involved in it; and the more we put into it, the more we will get out of it!

Let's all bind together and make this a great revival so we can get this year off to a terrific start.

TREVECCA GETS A NEW LOOK

by Barbara Montague

One of the busiest and perhaps least recognized team at Trevecca is the Maintenance Crew. They had an extremely busy summer, and many of their undertakings have been completed.

The Administration Building received numerous changes. The faculty driveway and parking lot was newly blacktopped, bulletin boards were hung in the faculty office on the fourth floor, and new stone walls were placed in front of the building. A student directory is proposed for the front of the building. This will be helpful to both students and visitors, for a map of the campus will be located on one side and announcements will appear on the opposite side.

The Fine Arts Building was completely redecorated. New arches in front and dry wells at the south entrance were installed. Light fixtures in the band room were replaced, and the chandelier from the President's former home was hung in the main entrance.

The P.E. Center obtained several upgradings, some of which are yet to be completed. The floors of the gymnasium and handball courts were redone, and the basement has a new door. All of the cement floors were sealed to make cleaning easier, and two doors were cut into the gym to meet fire regulations. Lights for the tennis courts are in the process of installation so that students may use them at night.

The parking lot behind McClurken was finished and is in use. The aisles of the chapel were carpeted, and a new storm drain was put between McClurken and the Science Building.

Inside the Science Building, book shelves and work tables were added to the physics lab. Water and gas connections were installed in classrooms for student use.

Some of the dormitories were redecorated in various ways. The new snack center, which offers food and relaxation, is housed in Johnson Hall. A new stone wall was also built in front of Johnson. The halls and lobby of McKay Hall were carpeted and painted, and most of Wise was painted also. The President's home was transformed into an honor dorm for women, and the newly completed two-bedroom apartments for married students is being used for a boys' dormitory this year. The Maintenance Crew also had the responsibility of preparing the ground, opening the walls, etc., for the dormitory room phones.

Various other projects were completed, such as the installation of a new divider in the cafeteria and the replacements of fixtures, mirrors, locks, and racks. Trash cans and benches were painted purple as a tribute to the school colors. The flag pole, light poles, fire escapes, and railings were also painted.

There should be no doubt in anyone's mind as to what the Maintenance Crew has been doing this past summer, and we are very grateful to them for their work.

This year's All School Retreat was held September 21, 22, and 23 at Falls Creek Falls State Park near Sparta, Tennessee. Approximately 95 people registered during this weekend.

More information and pictures on the retreat will appear in the next issue of TREV-ECHOES.

FRESHMEN INVADES TNC

by Kathy White

Contrary to the popular belief that summer vacation works miracles for most people, one finds the break in scholastic routine didn't do such a "hot" job for the class of '77. Could the reason be that it rained all summer? No, I don't think so. This year's freshman class is a typical freshman class.

Just like all the previous freshman classes, this year's class members have mixed emotions about leaving a comfortable home, mom, dad, and apple pie for a crowded dorm and the cafeteria food so fond to the memories of upperclassmen. Trevecca itself is sufficient cause for mixed emotions on the part of some students. Guy Priest said, "When I got here in time for the A.C.T. test, I thought the campus was kind of shoddy. The bed in my dorm hadn't been set up, and I had to sleep on cardboard. But after everything was straightened out, I really loved it." Marilyn Prindle observed that "my closet doors don't work!"

Generally, most of the freshmen were impressed by the friendliness of both fellow students and professors. "I'm so impressed by everyone's attitude," said Wanda Cochran. "Everybody's drawn so close together by a Christian spirit."

Marilyn Prindle was amazed by the fact that "everybody says 'hi' to each other." Cindy Beardslee commented on the professors. She said, "I think the professors are cool! They seem so fair, and I like the way they take a personal interest in each student. Starting classes with prayer impresses me too. It shows that God is working through the professors."

If one observes closely, he finds that this year's freshman class is no different than last year's. Let's face the fact that freshmen just never change! Every year they are the kinds whom the sophomores harass during Rat Week, and who somehow endure all the humiliation and suffering connected with that week. But let's also face the fact that we love having them on campus. After all, the upperclassmen would feel that much less superior without them.

So, freshmen of T.N.C., unite! Enjoy your first year of college as though it were your last, because one of these days you'll look back on 1973 and say, "If you wanna be the top banana, you've gotta start at the bottom of the bunch!"

Roy Desha entertains a captivated audience with such songs as, "Just Wanna Ride My Motorcycle."

"THE HAPPY TIME CLUB"

by Tim Pusey

Three young couples from Nashville served as missionaries this summer, but they didn't leave the metropolitan area. They were serving with Nashville First Church of the Nazarene's neighborhood vacation Bible school program called, "The Happytime Club." Approximately 1,865 children attended in a nine-week period.

Rev. Adrian Jones, minister of outreach headed the program and was aided by the following: Gary and Barbara Rohman; Don York and Carla Maxwell; and Jerry Sudduth and Ruth Wright. Each couple was in charge of one neighborhood a week.

The summer program began with a three-day training period for the workers. Each Saturday three new areas were canvassed with information about the Happytime Club. The following Monday brought parades to draw interest and build excitement. Bible stories, games, and refreshments were held in a member of First Church's yard for nearly an hour and a half each day. The week ended with an ice cream party to which the parents were invited.

People were reached who had not attended church in years. One of the missionaries said, "The most important thing that I learned this summer was that you have to go to the people where they are, not wait for them to come to you!"

TROJAN TALK

BY Cindy Swissholm, Rick Funderburk and Kenny Moses

The Trevecca Athletic Association is on its way to another year of intramural activities. The societies, Tau Beta, Tau Delta, Tau Alpha, and Tau Gamma, have been chosen, and all members are ready for a good year of competition.

Representatives will be chosen by each society to serve with the executive officers. The officers for the '73-74 school year are: President - Mary Lou Pennington; Vice President - Larry Cook; Secretary - Donna McLemore; and Sponsor - Bill Green.

All fall intramural sports include: tennis, football, Powder Puff football, archery, and volleyball (girls and boys).

Tournaments are usually played at the end of the year to determine society winner: volleyball, baseball, basketball, ping pong, and hand ball for the boys and basketball, volleyball, and ping pong for the girls.

INTRAMURAL SCENE

We are off to a big year with new sports plus some improvements. The newest additions to the sports scene is a tennis tournament and Powder Puff Football. The tennis tournament is open to all, with different divisions including singles, doubles, and even mixed doubles. Powder Puff Football will be the newest aspect at Trevecca. Since interest has been shown, this will be the women's initial season.

The first regular season football game will kick-off at 9:00 a.m. September 29. This year, there is the addition of a third referee, which may either help or hinder in the game. The biggest event will be a game pitting the number one society team (Alpha, Beta, Delta, or Gamma) against the All-Stars from the other three. This will wind up the football season.

Women's intramurals are also off and running with volleyball. All of the teams look tough, but lack of teamwork will hurt each society.

Participation must be the key word if the intramural program is to be successful. Under the direction of Mary Lou Pennington and Larry Cook, the intramural program should be successful...but only with your help. Get involved!

FALL TENNIS

The one word that wraps up the tennis team this year is depth. Coach Smith is very confident in this and in the fact that they have very high possibilities for a winning season, due mainly to seven returning lettermen. The seven include: Men's team - Kevin Beard

(1); Larry Tarter (2); Charlie Gray (3); and Danny Blue (5). Women's team - Barbara Duke (1); Nancy Mackey (4); and Dab Hadley (6). A host of new players have also come out for the tennis team. They are: Men's team - Rick Quevedo, Bob Blankenship, Carl Hall, and Paul Gray; Women's team (including two transfers) - Melody Anderson, Brenda Patterson, Alice Hall, Jane Shelton, and Donna Chambers.

The Trojans tennis players will be in a city-wide meet for colleges held at Centennial Park, October 26-27. They will face David Lipscomb, Belmont, Fisk, and Aquinas. Coach Smith plans four matches before the city meet, two dates for which have been confirmed. Fisk will play here September 29 and Peabody, October 5.

The team's performance far exceeds its year's experience and that in itself should be reason to believe that Trevecca will have a winning season in tennis.

BASEBALL

This fall the baseball team is playing a lowkeyed schedule. They have planned ten scrimmages this fall. There are fifteen returning lettermen and several new prospects, which will aid the team.

We are all looking forward to a good season in the spring. Our second scrimmage of the year is to be here against Belmont.
